Americans' support of Panama Canal treaty still in doubt

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration has Latin American backing for the new Panama Canal treaty, but the support of the American people and Congress is still in doubt.

After the colorful treaty-signing ceremony, attended by 27 visiting leaders, the spotlight is focusing on opponents of the pact.

Long-time foes of relinquishing control of the waterway argued their case today before the Senate Judiciary subcommittee on separation of powers.

Former California governor Ronald Reagan testified that if the Senate ratifies the new Panama Canal treaty the Soviet Union and Cuba may be encouraged to expand their influence in Panama.

"It should never surprise us that whenever the United States withdraws its presence or its strong interest from any area, the Soviets are ready, willing and often able to exploit the situation," said Reagan, who unsuccessfully sought the Republican presidential nomination last year.

"Can we believe that the Panama Canal is any exception?"

With public opinion polls showing only minority support for the treaty, Carter faces an uphill fight in his bid to convince two-thirds of the Senate that the accord is in the national interest.

American officials say the President is expected to use three main arguments in his

Committee may approve prison and building bill next week

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo (AP) — A $140 million prison compromise and state building bill—stalled in the legisltive conference committee for sevreal weeks—may win the committee's approval next week.

Sen. Donald Manford, D+Lees Summit, Wednesday said the negotiators on the 10-member conference committee hoped to iron out their differences next Tuesday and then send the bill to the House and Senate for final approval.

Legislative leaders earlier this week said some progress had been made toward resolving the differences between the House version of the bill, which has a price tag of $142 million, and the $145 million bill passed by the Senate.

An impasse in the conference committee over several differences between the two versions had forced this summer's special session to recess.

The main obstacle had been whether to accept the Senate's position for $14 million to fully fund a proposed state office complex in mid-town St. Louis or to approve the $7 million appropriation backed by the House.

The special session recessed because of the stalemate, but Manford said the informal discussion carried on by the committee members since then had succeeded in making some progress.

"We're going with the House figure," Manford said.

However, he said the Senate wanted an assurance from Gov. Joseph Teaasdale and the House that they would support full funding for the St. Louis project in the next fiscal year's appropriations.

Rep, Wayne Goode, D+Normandy, and chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, said he hoped any remaining problems between the two chambers could be worked out informally before the committee members get together next Tuesday.

U.S., Canada plan pipeline across Yukon

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter and Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau announced today agreement on construction of a $10 billion pipeline across the Canadian Yukon to carry natural gas from Alaska to the lower 48 states.

"This joint undertaking will be the largest single private energy project in history," they said in a joint statement issued by the White House.

Carter and Trudeau said "major benefits will accrue to both countries" from the pipeline. They said it will give Canada greater ability to develop its own gas reserves, particularly in the frontier regions of the Mackenzie Delta.

"The U.S., in turn, will have the enormous benefit of new natural gas supplies from the North Slope of Alaska at a significantly lower cost-of-service price than could have been achieved through an all+U.S. route," they said.

They said they hoped to sign a detailed

Hearnes considers judge's post

CHARLESTON, Mo. (AP) — Former Gov. Warren E. Hearnes says he is considering running for circuit court judge for Mississippi and Scott counties.

But Hearnes said that while numerous lawyers in the Bootheel area have talked with him about the possibility, he would wait until Circuit Court Judge Marshall Craig announced his plans.

"I'm not even going to speculate about it," Hearnes said.

Under a constitutional amendment passed last year, Craig will be required to retire as of the effective date of the amendment, Jan. 1, 1979. The amendment calls for retirement of all judges at 70.

Craig, who is 70, was re-elected to a new six-year term last year. He has been circuit court judge since 1955.

Since leaving the statehouse in 1973, Hearnes has practiced law here and in St. Louis. Last year he lost in a bid to obtain the Democratic party's nomination for a U.S. Senate seat.

NECESSARY, BUT BITTER, PILL

The Food and Drug Administration's proposed ban on saccharin in food and beverages has been greeted rather sourly here and there. The FDA's action and a broader ban proposed in Canada were prompted by a Canadian study that linked the no-calorie sweetener to bladder cancer in laboratory rats.

The findings have been ridiculed because the rats were fed such large amounts of saccharin that a human being, to ingest a comparable dose, might have to drink 800 diet colas a day, or chew 6700 sticks of Blammo gum daily, or consume 1,500,000 packages of Sweet 'n Low a year. Such outlandish figures are supposed to show that any risks are so minute, even for saccharin junkies, that the ban is unwarranted. Moreover, it is argued that barring saccharin will complicate diet control for diabetics and could lead many people to increase their consumption of sugar, with many adverse effects on health.

It may well be that the average weight-watcher is not too likely to contract cancer from using saccharin. However, the doses used in the Canadian study are well within the range that cautious toxicologists like to test before deciding whether a substance is safe. Moreover, "likelihood" is not the proper standard to apply. Under the Delaney amendment, the FDA is required to act against any substance shown to cause cancer in humans or animals, no matter how remote the risks may seem.

There is good reason for the uncompromising language of that law. Defining acceptable risks to public health is a devilish job even if all the evidence is in. The effects of repeated exposure to carcinogens, especially in small quantities, may not show up for 20 years or more.

The weighing of risks does become rather different for diabetics and others for whom strict diet or weight control is a daily medical imperative. Those cases can be handled by keeping saccharin available as a prescription drug, which the FDA could do. The sweetest note in the whole situation, though, is that many of the food and beverage manufacturers are now pressing ahead with their usual ingenuity to develop substitute sweeteners, much as they did when cyclamates were banned. We only hope the new concoctions will be thoroughly tested before they are marketed — not afterward. Meanwhile, it won't be tragic if there is a little less no-calorie sweet stuff in the marketplace. There is, after all, another substitute for sugar. It is called self-discipline, and it is generally considered very safe.

Art Buchwald

by Art Buchwald

WASHINGTON -- Like everyone else I used to have a friend at the Chase Manhattan Bank. My friend's name was Chauncey and he was like a brother to me.

When the recent Securities and Exchange Commission's report was published it turned out, according to the SEC, that Chase Manhattan was selling New York City securities to its customers at the same time it was unloading the ones it had kept for its own portfolio.

I couldn't believe it so I called Chauncey. He wasn't there.

I called him again. After four calls he finally picked up the phone and said tersely, "I told you never to call me at the office."

"Where am I supposed to call you?" I wanted to know.

"What is it? I'm very busy."

"Chauncey, is that the way to talk to a friend?"

"We stopped that advertising campaign two years ago."

"That's what I'm calling about. Remember when you were my dearest friend four years back and you called me and said you could sell me some of the finest municipal securities money could buy?"

"I don't recall the conversation."

"Well, I do. You said that New York City was on a wave of new prosperity and anyone who bought its notes would never have to worry about his financial future again."

"I said that?"

"You certainly did. You also said that because the demand was so great you were restricting sales of them to only your closest friends."

"I might have said it as a joke," Chauncey replied.

"You were dead serious, Chauncey. You didn't laugh once."

"All right, for argument's sake I might have said it. What do you want from me?"

"Well, I just read the SEC report on New York City and it claims that all the time Chase Manhattan was touting New York securities it was unloading its own notes because it knew the city was in a fiscal mess."

There was dead silence on the other end of the line.

"Chauncey, are you still there?"

"Yes, I'm here. I'm sure the SEC report is mistaken. We would never do that to our customers. We're one of the largest banks in the world."

"That's what I said when I bought $20,000 of the notes. I said if Chase Manhattan recommends them they must be good."

"They were good at the time I sold them to you," Chauncey said. "They just got bad as time went by."

"But why was Chase Manhattan getting rid of its notes when it was pushing them on its friends?"

FOCUS ON AMY
From The Kansas City Times

Although tiny Thaddeus Stevens Elementary School in Washington, D.C., has at time been a roost for reporters and cameras tracking the President's daughter, Amy, the focus of attention on Amy Carter has been good for the public school system.

Rumblings started when President Carter said that Amy would be attending the public school near the White House. It verified his commitment to public school education in America. But more than that it brought much-needed attention to the plight of school systems that have been abandoned for suburban and private schools.

Amy's presence at Stevens represents something of a moral prod for parents to reinvest in public schools and patronize their school district with the degree of interest that refuses to allow instructional programs or facilities to be curtailed. Active participation by parents in the care and concern for community schools simply will not stand still for budget reductions.

The cirriculum and other elements vital to quality education cannot help but be up to par when parents are concerned. The Washington school system, as are many urban school districts, is suffering through the effects of abandonment. President Carter's attitude, depending on how he follows up with exerting leadership on Congress, can reverse the course of public school deterioration. He and Amy cannot, however, do it alone.

Just as the schools in our neighborhoods are close to us—both financially and emotionally—so are the schools across the metropolitan area, the state and the nation. The improvement of public schools cannot be confined to a handful of schools any more than the problems that bring down the quality of education.

Amy's classmates might wonder why such a fuss is made over her presence in public schools. We hope that parents will begin to make a fuss over why their own schools are not doing the job they are supposed to do.

"TO REMEMBER ME..."

The day will come when my body will lie upon a white sheet neatly tucked under four corners of a mattress located in a hospital busily occupied with the living and the dying. At a certain moment a doctor will determine that my brain has ceased to function and that, for all intents and purposes, my life has stopped.

When that happens, do not attempt to instill artificial life into my body by the use of a machine. And don't call this my deathbed. Let it be called the Bed of Life, and let my body be taken from it to help others lead fuller lives.

Give my sight to the man who has never seen a sunrise, a baby's face or love in the eyes of a woman. Give my heart to a person whose own heart has caused nothing but endless days of pain. Give my blood to the teen-ager who was pulled from the wreckage of his car, so that he might live to see his grandchildren play. Give my kidneys to one who depends on a machine to exist from week to week. Take my bones, every muscle, every fiber and nerve in my body and find a way to make a crippled child walk.

Explore every corner of my brain. Take my cells, if necessary, and let them grow so that, someday, a speechless boy will shout at the crack of a bat and a deaf girl will hear the sound of rain against her window.

Burn what is left of me and scatter the ashes to the winds to help the flowers grow.

If you must bury something, let it be my faults, my weaknesses and all prejudice against my fellow man.

Give my sins to the devil. Give my soul to God.

If, by chance, you wish to remember me, do it with a kind deed or word to someone who needs you. If you do all I have asked, I will live forever.

LIGHTS AT THE END OF THE PIPELINE?

Alaskan oil has begun flowing through what could be the largest electrical conductor ever constructed. Researchers at the University of Alaska's Geophysical Institute theorize that the aurora borealis — the colorful fireworks known as the northern lights — could turn the 800-mile pipeline from the Prudhoe Bay oil field to the port of Valdez into one long conductor.

Interactino of the charged air with the magnetic field of the earth could induce surges of up to 1000 amperes of electric current in the metal pipe, the scientists point out. The discharge of his much electricity from the pipe to the bround would free iron molecules and hasten corrosion of the steel pipeline. To prevent this, cables carrying both a positive and a negative electrical charge have been attached at points where the pipe dips into the ground. Until now, problems caused by the electrical displays at the earth's poles have been limited chiefly to compass error and radio interferenece.

The aurora borealis most often is visible within a 300-mile-wide belt that rings the magnetic North Pole sweeping south of Greenland and across northern Norway, Alaska and Canada. Its southern counterpart, aurora australis, normally confines its activity to Antarctica and the surrounding oceans. When auroral displays shift occasionally to other latitudes, startled citizens are likely to flood police switchboards with anxious calls.

Scientists have found the play of lights intensifies during sunspot activity. As the sun revolves on its axis, it throws off streams of electrified particles that sweep millions of miles into space. When these streams shower the earth's atmosphere, the particles — traveling at speeds estimated at 400 to 600 miles a second — are drawn toward the magnetic poles.

The collision of these high-energy electrons and protons with atoms of rarified air in the upper atmosphere creates the colorful auroras. Molecules of nitrogen and hydrogen emit violet, blue or red hues, while oxygen produces green and red. Telescopes, rockets, jet planes and satellits have been used to probe these airborne ribbons of color. Now geophysicists think the trans-Alaska pipeline may become an instrument reflecting the voltage of the aurora borealis.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

Of Making Waters 'Fishable and Swimmable'

Clean water is a goal everyone will agree to, but the ways to achieve that goal are many, and disagreement over these ways is great. Victor Riesel's guest columnist today, Irving S. Shapiro, chairman of E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co., Inc., gives a businessman's viewpoint on the question.

By Irving S. Shapiro
Chairman, E.I. dupont di Numoirs — Co, inc.

WILMINGTON, Del. -- A recent study out of Washington has the potential of saving the country billions of dollars which otherwise might be misspent on water pollution control efforts that would result in no discernible improvement in the quality of our waterways.

More important, if the dollars saved were invested in productive manufacturing capacity, thousands of meaningful new jobs would be created to help ease the current high rate of unemployment.

The study came about as the result of the 1972 water quality bill, which set very ambitious goals . Some members of Congress were concerned about whether these goals could be met, how they might be met, and what effect they might have on the environment and the economy. They also wanted a mechanism to bring new scientific and engineering knowledge into the regulatory effort.

Because of these concerns, Congress established the National Water Quality Commission, with five members from each house of the Congress and five public members appointed by the President. Its job was to monitor the country's progress in water cleanup in light of all the latest knowledge.

Among other things, the commission found that requirements and goals set for 1977 will bring clean water to many areas when those goals are achieved. That is, most of our rivers and streams will be fishable and swimmable once the goals set for 1977 have been met.

But then the commission went on to say that the more ambitious and more costly requirements scheduled for 1983 are not justified as a general rule. Billions of investment dollars could be saved without lowering the quality of the water if those 1983 standards were to be postponed until scientists and engineers can determine where the stringent standards might be needed on a selective basis.

These findings and recommendations -- shared by the National Academy of Sciences make a good case for the policy which I have called "zero-based regulatory review."

The idea is similar to President Carter's "zero-based budgeting," in which spending programs are reviewed from scratch every year to make certain they are still needed.

Applying that principle to regulatory review would give us a means of determining whether all of our very expensive environmental and health regulations should stand precisely the way they were enacted years ago. We could be assured that we are working on the right problem, using the latest knowledge, and are not causing unforeseen side effects that degreade the quality of life.

Is there enough evidence to justify zero-based regulatory review? The water quality findings seem to indicate there is.

Our experience at the Du Pont Company also supports this need. We have projected that Du Pont will have to spend about $3 billion by 1985 in capital investment to satisfy the requirements of just three existing or anticipated water, air and noise laws or regulations.

In addition, these investments would eventually involve additional operating costs of about $1 billion each year.

We'd have no complaint if that $3 billion would actually buy the public benefits it is supposed to. But our study shows that about 75 per cent of that $3 billion will, in effect, be wasted because it either will buy only marginal improvements beyond the goals our government has set, require spending money before science has been able to measure some of the problems with any reasonable certainty, or it will require spending money for specific new noise controls even though other, less expensive means to achieve the goals already exist.

Let me give just one example. The 1972 water quality law specifies that by 1977 industries should be utilizing "best practical" technology to treat their discharge. In many areas, that will be sufficient to make the water fishable and swimmable, the national water quality goals. Unfortunately, the law also calls for the addition of "best available" technology by 1983 -- everywhere, even on waterways where the 1977 measures have achieved the basic goal of fishable and swimmable waters.

The obvious question is, why go further after the goals are met? This would cost Du Pont $650 million.

What it all boils down to is that unless there are changes in the areas of air, water and noise pollution, Du Pont will ha ve to spend more than two and a quarter billion dollars for projects that will produce no discernible public benefits. With that kind of money, we could build 19 new industrial plants which would provide some 18,000 new jobs. Thousands of new jobs also would be created in downstream customer industries.

The same amount of environmental investment, on the other hand, would provide only about half as many jobs.

I am not attempting to interfere with or set back the environmental movement by proposing zero-based regulatory review. Far from it. I believe that a responsible approach to ensuring that we -- the public -- get our money's worth from our investment dollars will help advance the environmental movement.

Businessmen find themselves looking at many demands on the limited number of dollars at their disposal and trying to make judgments as to the best places to put those dollars. Anything which tends to increase demands for investment dollars creates an almost automatic resistance from the business community. This resistance, in turn, tends to increase the adversary government -- business relationship -- at least where matters of regulation are concerned.

I believe institution of an effective periodic zero-based regulatory review process in which business could participate (one of the 15 members of the water commission was from business) would help reduce that adversary relationship and, more important, assist in achieving the goals of these regulations with less waste.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

The Letelier Murder Case

by Jack Anderson and Les Whitten

WASHINGTON — The man behind the murder of Chilean exile leader Orlando Letelier, as federal investigators have pieced together the mystery, is probably Chile's shadowy secret police chief, Manuel Contreras Sepulveda.

In one of the most complicated investigations since Watergate, FBI sleuths have traced the man who ordered the killing to Contreras' office in Santiago, Chile. They are not yet certain, however, whether Contreras himself gave the order or whether it came from a top aide.

Most federal sources believe the murder could not have been carried out without Contreras' direct approval. In fact, some Justice Dept. sources speculate that Chilean President Augusto Pinochet himself personally suggested the assassination.

No one working on the case will comment directly. But we have learned that the FBI has stepped [illegible] activity among terrorists in [illegible] bones to resolve the case in the near future, complete with the names of the actual assassins.

Letelier was killed by a bomb, which was attached beneath his Chevrolet. The bomb exploded last September 21 as he was driving down Washington's tranquil Embassy Row with two American colleagues, Mike and Ronnie Moffitt.

The blast killed Letelier and Mrs. Moffitt but miraculously spared her husband. Afterward, an anguished Mike Moffitt begged us to investigate the bombing. We have kept in close touch, therefore, with the federal investigation.

Within a few weeks, we were able to identify Chile's notorious secret police, known by the dread initials DINA, as the probable culprits. Now we can describe the murder plot.

We are told that Pinochet expressed his displeasure with Letelier to the DINA chief. We have reason to believe that Contreras, in response to the Chilean president's wishes, dispatched a DINA officer to the United States to meet with two leaders of Brigade 2506, an organization of Bay of Pigs veterans.

Some members of the brigade, trained in violence by the CIA, allegedly have become right-wing terrorists. The DINA agent was put in touch with them, according to our sources, by a Chilean diplomat in the United States, who secretly works for DINA.

We reached the diplomat who reportedly has been interrogated by U.S. authorities. At first, he told us through an interpretor that the affair was his "private problem." Then he refused to comment; then his aide told us the charge was "ridiculous."

Investigators tell us, however, the two brigade leaders contacted among others a Cuban demolitions expert, Guillermo Novo, in New Jersey. At the time, he was on probation after conviction for illegal use of explosives. He violated his probation and is now a fugitive.

The assassination plot was worked out, our sources say, at a secret rendezvous near Bonao in the Dominican Republic. It was decided that a special shaped plastic charge was needed for the bombing.

The explosive was available on the streets of Miami, and the bomb materials were bought and fashioned in the United States, most sources believe.

However, one source told us the bomb was actually constructed in Chile.

It was later delivered to the Miami area by a Chilean military official carrying a diplomatic passport and flying in a military airplane, the source said. The device was transmitted to a member of Brigade 2506, we are told. He then carried it to New Jersey where the assassination team was waiting for it. They used the bomb, according to our sources, to kill Letelier.

The Justice Dept. had no formal comment on the case. We have learned that prosecutors, however, are trying to figure how to get testimony from Chileans with diplomatic immunity and how to extradite potential defendants from Chile.

Footnote: The Chilean government has repeatedly denied any involvement with the assassination. Spokesmen for Brigade 2506 also have sworn that their members had nothing to do with murdering Letelier. Incidentally, Chile has announced the dissolution of DINA. But our sources say its duties simply have been taken over by other organizations.

WASHINGTON WHIRL: Graciela Olivarez is raising hackles inside the Community Services Administration. This is the agency that has taken over the work of the Poverty Corps. Not long after she took command of the new agency, she called the staff together not to outline programs to help the poor but to complain about coffee stains on the floor and waste paper in the ladies' rooms.

— President Carter has earmarked $4 billion to create 600,000 temporary jobs. Yet a tiny office inside the Commerce Dept. has helped create more than one million permanent jobs in the United States on a meager $100,000 budget. This two-man office runs the Invest in USA program, which has persuaded several foreign manufacturers to set up plants in this country.

— Rep. Parren Mitchell, D-Md., leader of the congressional black caucus, called on President Carter last week to complain about high unemployment among blacks. Inside the oval office, Mitchell told the president to his face: "Mr. President, when you're right, I'll praise you and stand by you. But when you're wrong, I'll fight you all the way." The president flashed his famous smile. "Congressman," he said, "you've been doing that already."

— President Carter's embattled budget director, Bert Lance, has been so busy defending himself that he seldom shows up any more at the senior staff meetings. At press time, he hadn't put in an appearance at a staff meeting in more than two weeks. He has been represented instead by his deputy director, 36-year-old James McIntyre, who also has strong Georgia credentials. He's a native of Vidalia, Ga., and a 1963 graduate of the University of Georgia law school.

NECESSARY, BUT BITTER, PILL

The Food and Drug Administration's proposed ban on saccharin in food and beverages has been greeted rather sourly here and there. The FDA's action and a broader ban proposed in Canada were prompted by a Canadian study that linked the no-calorie sweetener to bladder cancer in laboratory rats.

The findings have been ridiculed because the rats were fed such large amounts of saccharin that a human being, to ingest a comparable dose, might have to drink 800 diet colas a day, or chew 6700 sticks of Blammo gum daily, or consume 1,500,000 packages of Sweet 'n Low a year. Such outlandish figures are supposed to show that any risks are so minute, even for saccharin junkies, that the ban is unwarranted. Moreover, it is argued that barring saccharin will complicate diet control for diabetics and could lead many people to increase their consumption of sugar, with many adverse effects on health.

It may well be that the average weight-watcher is not too likely to contract cancer from using saccharin. However, the doses used in the Canadian study are well within the range that cautious toxicologists like to test before deciding whether a substance is safe. Moreover, "likelihood" is not the proper standard to apply. Under the Delaney amendment, the FDA is required to act against any substance shown to cause cancer in humans or animals, no matter how remote the risks may seem.

There is good reason for the uncompromising language of that law. Defining acceptable risks to public health is a devilish job even if all the evidence is in. The effects of repeated exposure to carcinogens, especially in small quantities, may not show up for 20 years or more.

The weighing of risks does become rather different for diabetics and others for whom strict diet or weight control is a daily medical imperative. Those cases can be handled by keeping saccharin available as a prescription drug, which the FDA could do. The sweetest note in the whole situation, though, is that many of the food and beverage manufacturers are now pressing ahead with their usual ingenuity to develop substitute sweeteners, much as they did when cyclamates were banned. We only hope the new concoctions will be thoroughly tested before they are marketed — not afterward. Meanwhile, it won't be tragic if there is a little less no-calorie sweet stuff in the marketplace. There is, after all, another substitute for sugar. It is called self-discipline, and it is generally considered very safe.

Art Buchwald

by Art Buchwald

WASHINGTON -- Like everyone else I used to have a friend at the Chase Manhattan Bank. My friend's name was Chauncey and he was like a brother to me.

When the recent Securities and Exchange Commission's report was published it turned out, according to the SEC, that Chase Manhattan was selling New York City securities to its customers at the same time it was unloading the ones it had kept for its own portfolio.

I couldn't believe it so I called Chauncey. He wasn't there.

I called him again. After four calls he finally picked up the phone and said tersely, "I told you never to call me at the office."

"Where am I supposed to call you?" I wanted to know.

"What is it? I'm very busy."

"Chauncey, is that the way to talk to a friend?"

"We stopped that advertising campaign two years ago."

"That's what I'm calling about. Remember when you were my dearest friend four years back and you called me and said you could sell me some of the finest municipal securities money could buy?"

"I don't recall the conversation."

"Well, I do. You said that New York City was on a wave of new prosperity and anyone who bought its notes would never have to worry about his financial future again."

"I said that?"

"You certainly did. You also said that because the demand was so great you were restricting sales of them to only your closest friends."

"I might have said it as a joke," Chauncey replied.

"You were dead serious, Chauncey. You didn't laugh once."

"All right, for argument's sake I might have said it. What do you want from me?"

"Well, I just read the SEC report on New York City and it claims that all the time Chase Manhattan was touting New York securities it was unloading its own notes because it knew the city was in a fiscal mess."

There was dead silence on the other end of the line.

"Chauncey, are you still there?"

"Yes, I'm here. I'm sure the SEC report is mistaken. We would never do that to our customers. We're one of the largest banks in the world."

"That's what I said when I bought $20,000 of the notes. I said if Chase Manhattan recommends them they must be good."

"They were good at the time I sold them to you," Chauncey said. "They just got bad as time went by."

"But why was Chase Manhattan getting rid of its notes when it was pushing them on its friends?"

"We felt we owed it to our customers to let them buy them. When the demand was greater than the supply we had no choice but to sell the ones we were holding for our own investment. It wasn't easy. We loved New York City securities, and it broke our hearts every time we sold one."

Molecules of nitrogen and hydrogen emit violet, blue or red hues, while oxygen produces green and red. Telescopes, rockets, jet planes and satellits have been used to probe these airborne ribbons of color. Now geophysicists think the trans-Alaska pipeline may become an instrument reflecting the voltage of the aurora borealis.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

Of Making Waters 'Fishable and Swimmable'

Clean water is a goal everyone will agree to, but the ways to achieve that goal are many, and disagreement over those ways is great. Victor Riesel's guest columnist today, Irving S. Shapiro, chairman of E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co., Inc., gives a businessman's viewpoint on the question.

By Irving S. Shapiro
Chairman, E.I. dupont di Numoirs — Co, inc.

WILMINGTON, Del. -- A recent study out of Washington has the potential of saving the country billions of dollars which otherwise might be misspent on water pollution control efforts that would result in no discernible improvement in the quality of our waterways.

More important, if the dollars saved were invested in productive manufacturing capacity, thousands of meaningful new jobs would be created to help ease the current high rate of unemployment.

The study came about as the result of the 1972 water quality bill, which set very ambitious goals . Some members of Congress were concerned about whether these goals could be met, how they might be met, and what effect they might have on the environment and the economy. They also wanted a mechanism to bring new scientific and engineering knowledge into the regulatory effort.

Because of these concerns, Congress established the National Water Quality Commission, with five members from each house of the Congress and five public members appointed by the President. Its job was to monitor the country's progress in water cleanup in light of all the latest knowledge.

Among other things, the commission found that requirements and goals set for 1977 will bring clean water to many areas when those goals are achieved. That is, most of our rivers and streams will be fishable and swimmable once the goals set for 1977 have been met.

But then the commission went on to say that the more ambitious and more costly requirements scheduled for 1983 are not justified as a general rule. Billions of investment dollars could be saved without lowering the quality of the water if those 1983 standards were to be postponed until scientists and engineers can determine where the stringent standards might be needed on a selective basis.

These findings and recommendations -- shared by the National Academy of Sciences make a good case for the policy which I have called "zero-based regulatory review."

The idea is similar to President Carter's "zero-based budgeting," in which spending programs are reviewed from scratch every year to make certain they are still needed.

Applying that principle to regulatory review would give us a means of determining whether all of our very expensive environmental and health regulations should stand precisely the way they were enacted years ago. We could be assured that we are working on the right problem, using the latest knowledge, and are not causing unforeseen side effects that degreade the quality of life.

Is there enough evidence to justify zero-based regulatory review? The water quality findings seem to indicate there is.

Our experience at the Du Pont Company also supports this need. We have projected that Du Pont will have to spend about $3 billion by 1985 in capital investment to satisfy the requirements of just three existing or anticipated water, air and noise laws or regulations.

In addition, these investments would eventually involve additional operating costs of about $1 billion each year.

We'd have no complaint if that $3 billion would actually buy the public benefits it is supposed to. But our study shows that about 75 per cent of that $3 billion will, in effect, be wasted because it either will buy only marginal improvements beyond the goals our government has set, require spending money before science has been able to measure some of the problems with any reasonable certainty, or it will require spending money for specific new noise controls even though other, less expensive means to achieve the goals already exist.

Let me give just one example. The 1972 water quality law specifies that by 1977 industries should be utilizing "best practical" technology to treat their discharge. In many areas, that will be sufficient to make the water fishable and swimmable, the national water quality goals. Unfortunately, the law also calls for the addition of "best available" technology by 1983 -- everywhere, even on waterways where the 1977 measures have achieved the basic goal of fishable and swimmable waters.

The obvious question is, why go further after the goals are met? This would cost Du Pont $650 million.

What it all boils down to is that unless there are changes in the areas of air, water and noise pollution, Du Pont will ha ve to spend more than two and a quarter billion dollars for projects that will produce no discernible public benefits. With that kind of money, we could build 19 new industrial plants which would provide some 18,000 new jobs. Thousands of new jobs also would be created in downstream customer industries.

The same amount of environmental investment, on the other hand, would provide only about half as many jobs.

I am not attempting to interfere with or set back the environmental movement by proposing zero-based regulatory review. Far from it. I believe that a responsible approach to ensuring that we -- the public -- get our money's worth from our investment dollars will help advance the environmental movement.

Businessmen find themselves looking at many demands on the limited number of dollars at their disposal and trying to make judgments as to the best places to put those dollars. Anything which tends to increase demands for investment dollars creates an almost automatic resistance from the business community. This resistance, in turn, tends to increase the adversary government -- business relationship -- at least where matters of regulation are concerned.

I believe institution of an effective periodic zero-based regulatory review process in which business could participate (one of the 15 members of the water commission was from business) would help reduce that adversary relationship and, more important, assist in achieving the goals of these regulations with less waste.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

The Letelier Murder Case

by Jack Anderson and Les Whitten

WASHINGTON — The man behind the murder of Chilean exile leader Orlando Letelier, as federal investigators have pieced together the mystery, is probably Chile's shadowy secret police chief, Manuel Contreras Sepulveda.

In one of the most complicated investigations since Watergate, FBI sleuths have traced the man who ordered the killing to Contreras' office in Santiago, Chile. They are not yet certain, however, whether Contreras himself gave the order or whether it came from a top aide.

Most federal sources believe the murder could not have been carried out without Contreras' direct approval. In fact, some Justice Dept. sources speculate that Chilean President Augusto Pinochet himself personally suggested the assassination.

No one working on the case will comment directly. But we have learned that the FBI has stepped [illegible] activity among terrorists in [illegible] bones to resolve the case in the near future, complete with the names of the actual assassins.

Letelier was killed by a bomb, which was attached beneath his Chevrolet. The bomb exploded last September 21 as he was driving down Washington's tranquil Embassy Row with two American colleagues, Mike and Ronnie Moffitt.

The blast killed Letelier and Mrs. Moffitt but miraculously spared her husband. Afterward, an anguished Mike Moffitt begged us to investigate the bombing. We have kept in close touch, therefore, with the federal investigation.

Within a few weeks, we were able to identify Chile's notorious secret police, known by the dread initials DINA, as the probable culprits. Now we can describe the murder plot.

We are told that Pinochet expressed his displeasure with Letelier to the DINA chief. We have reason to believe that Contreras, in response to the Chilean president's wishes, dispatched a DINA officer to the United States to meet with two leaders of Brigade 2506, an organization of Bay of Pigs veterans.

Some members of the brigade, trained in violence by the CIA, allegedly have become right-wing terrorists. The DINA agent was put in touch with them, according to our sources, by a Chilean diplomat in the United States, who secretly works for DINA.

We reached the diplomat who reportedly has been interrogated by U.S. authorities. At first, he told us through an interpretor that the affair was his "private problem." Then he refused to comment; then his aide told us the charge was "ridiculous."

Investigators tell us, however, the two brigade leaders contacted among others a Cuban demolitions expert, Guillermo Novo, in New Jersey. At the time, he was on probation after conviction for illegal use of explosives. He violated his probation and is now a fugitive.

The assassination plot was worked out, our sources say, at a secret rendezvous near Bonao in the Dominican Republic. It was decided that a special shaped plastic charge was needed for the bombing.

The explosive was available on the streets of Miami, and the bomb materials were bought and fashioned in the United States, most sources believe.

However, one source told us the bomb was actually constructed in Chile.

It was later delivered to the Miami area by a Chilean military official carrying a diplomatic passport and flying in a military airplane, the source said. The device was transmitted to a member of Brigade 2506, we are told. He then carried it to New Jersey where the assassination team was waiting for it. They used the bomb, according to our sources, to kill Letelier.

The Justice Dept. had no formal comment on the case. We have learned that prosecutors, however, are trying to figure how to get testimony from Chileans with diplomatic immunity and how to extradite potential defendants from Chile.

Footnote: The Chilean government has repeatedly denied any involvement with the assassination. Spokesmen for Brigade 2506 also have sworn that their members had nothing to do with murdering Letelier. Incidentally, Chile has announced the dissolution of DINA. But our sources say its duties simply have been taken over by other organizations.

WASHINGTON WHIRL: Graciela Olivarez is raising hackles inside the Community Services Administration. This is the agency that has taken over the work of the Poverty Corps. Not long after she took command of the new agency, she called the staff together not to outline programs to help the poor but to complain about coffee stains on the floor and waste paper in the ladies' rooms.

— President Carter has earmarked $4 billion to create 600,000 temporary jobs. Yet a tiny office inside the Commerce Dept. has helped create more than one million permanent jobs in the United States on a meager $100,000 budget. This two-man office runs the Invest in USA program, which has persuaded several foreign manufacturers to set up plants in this country.

— Rep. Parren Mitchell, D-Md., leader of the congressional black caucus, called on President Carter last week to complain about high unemployment among blacks. Inside the oval office, Mitchell told the president to his face: "Mr. President, when you're right, I'll praise you and stand by you. But when you're wrong, I'll fight you all the way." The president flashed his famous smile. "Congressman," he said, "you've been doing that already."

— President Carter's embattled budget director, Bert Lance, has been so busy defending himself that he seldom shows up any more at the senior staff meetings. At press time, he hadn't put in an appearance at a staff meeting in more than two weeks. He has been represented instead by his deputy director, 36-year-old James McIntyre, who also has strong Georgia credentials. He's a native of Vidalia, Ga., and a 1963 graduate of the University of Georgia law school.

Park return grows doubtful

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — The South Korean government tried and failed to persuade Tongsun Park to return to the United States, but it cannot force him to go back, Foreign Minister Park Tong-jin told a news conference today.

The minister said his government at Washington's request urged the wealthy South Korean businessman and rice dealer to return voluntarily to Washington, where he has been indicted on charges of attempting to bribe members of the U.S. Congress. But Park made clear that he has no intention of going to the United States, the foreign minister said.

The minister insisted that his government is cooperating as much as it can with American efforts to investigate Park. But he said his government cannot go beyond the limits of international law, established diplomatic practice and South Korean law.

The South Korean government has repeatedly denied that it had any connection with Park's activities or that he was its agent trying to influence members of Congress to support legislation favorable to it. The foreign minister contended today that the case against Park involved only his personal activities as a rice dealer.

VFW chief raps pact signing

ST. JOSEPH, Mo. (AP) — John T. Ferguson Jr., surrendered Wednesday to face charges in connection with the Aug. 17 beating death of a customer at a used car lot.

The 36-year-old paroled convict is accused of using a length of pipe to beat Victor J. Krimmel, 49, who requested repairs after buying a used car at the lot where Ferguson worked.

When he was arraigned on the second-degree murder charge, Ferguson told Magistrate Randall Jackson he had been in St. Louis and returned to St. Joseph Wednesday morning.

Ferguson posted $30,000 bond to appear for a preliminary hearing on Sept. 14.

Ferguson acknowledged he has four felony convictions. The most recent one was at nearby Oregon, Mo., for burglary and stealing, and he was paroled from that sentence on March 21, 1976.

Kidnapers issue new threat

BONN, West Germany (AP) — The kidnapers of industry leader Hanns Martin Schleyer have threatened to execute him unless the search for him is halted, the West German government revealed today. The execution threat was contained in a ransom letter the government made public 24 hours after it failed to meet a deadline set by the kidnapers for the release of 11 jailed terrorists.

And they plan a party Sept. 24 for Liddy, newly returned to his suburban Washington home from a federal prison at Danbury, Conn. Panamanian reactions mixed

PANAMA CITY, Panama (AP) — Church bells rang, car horns blared and hundred of Panamanians paraded through the streets Wednesday night to celebrate the signing of the new Panama Canal treaties.

American opponents of the pact marched in black through the Canal Zone, and Panamanian opponents clashed with police Wednesday afternoon outside the Foreign Ministry.

Those Panamanians oppose the treaty because it does not call for immediate U.S. withdrawal. They threw stones and shouted slogans, then battled riot police who moved in to disperse them. Dozens of protestors were injured, and at least 30 were arrested.

The crowds in Panama City during the evening turned out in response to a call from the government-line newspaper Critica for "massive jubilation." Their cheers mingled with the blare of horns, fire sirens and bells as National Guardsmen set off fireworks over the city.

Stolen property crackdown

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Law enforcement authorities expected to arrest more than 100 persons today in a crackdown on sales of stolen property, the St. Louis Post+Dispatch reported.

The operation, part of the U.S. Law Enforcement Assistance Administration's "Operation Stings," recovered stolen property valued at more than $800,000, the newspaper said.

St. Louis police, the FBI, the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms and the U.S. Postal Inspectors Office participated in the raids, an FBI spokesman said.

The Law Enforcement Assistance Administration provided money for undercover agents to buy stolen property, gather information, recover stolen goods and eventually make arrests, the newspaper said.

The arrests today were largely for burglary, stealing and receiving stolen property, the newpaper said.

The undercover operation began in St. Louis in January when federal and state agents established a store called SSD Co., a name taken from the police department's Special Services Division, the Post said.

The law enforcement team recovered 107 automobiles, three motorcycles, seven handguns, three rifles, automobile accessories, cameras, men's clothing, household appliances, tools, bicycles, 78 cases of liquor, several coin collections and 11,000 vitamin C pills, the Post said.

Asked the reason for Amin's operation, he replied: "We don't exactly know. But he's in a coma. We believe he'll pull out of it. I'm going over to the hospital right now to see what's happening."

Escape is as much the crime

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

As a criminal, Barney was more culpable than capable. As example, after successfully holding up a shopkeeper, he managed to drop his loot while escaping, and if that wasn't confidence shattering enough, he then managed to inadvertently run over a pedestrian -- while trying to outspeed two pursuing police cars -- and was arrested when a tree refused to get out of the way of his careening vehicle.

What really upset Barney, however, was that he was booked on charges of first degree murder when the pedestrian died.

"Under the law in this state," he was told, "it's "murder numero 1" when a person causes a death while committing a crime."

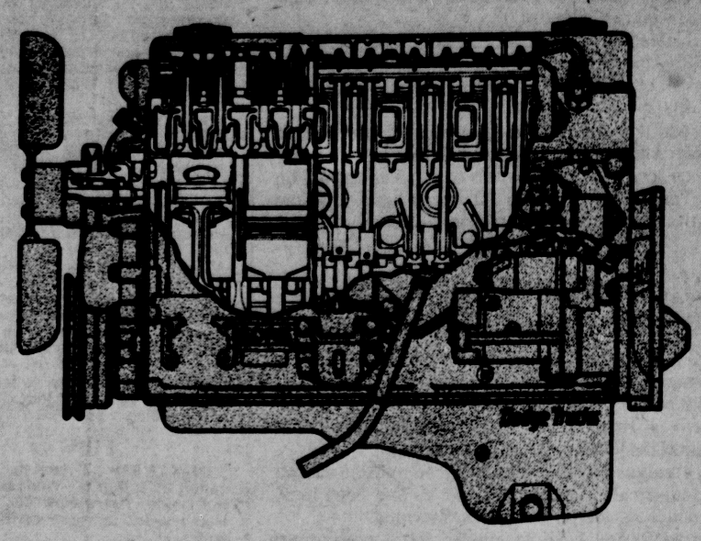

"You can't be serious," responded Barney nervously. "I'm no murderer. I'm just an inept holdup man. Besides, I wasn't committing any crime when I ran over that pedestrian. When I ran the poor guy down, I was at least 20 blocks away from where the holdup took place. The crime was long over."

The case against Barney, however, was presented in court.

If you were the judge, would you convict inept Barney of murder in the first degree?

This is how the judge ruled: Yes! The judge held that escaping from a holdup is as important a part of the crime as the holdup itself. If the holdup man fails to escape, his booty does him no good. Consequently, a robbery does not end the split second the victim surrenders his case, concluded the judge, but continues so long as the police are in hot pursuit. And in this case, the police were in hot pursuit when Barney clobbered the pedestrian, rendering him guilty of murder in the first degree for causing the death of another while committing a crime.

Illinois couple engages in bizarre shootout

HOMEWOOD, Ill. (AP) — A depressed and jealous wife shot her husband while he slept, but he revived nearly 20 hours later and the couple then took turns shooting each other with her gun, police said. It began in bed and went on as they crawled bleeding from room to room.

The .32-caliber revolver changed hands several times.

It ended after police arrived. They said the woman, who had turned the gun on herself by that point, fired a final shot at her husband, collapsed, and died.

Her husband was hospitalized in critical condition.

Police said the bizarre episode began at 7 a.m. Tuesday in a second-floor condominium in a comfortable new building in the suburb of Homewood, southwest of Chicago. It ended at 3 a.m. Wednesday.

Police said Margaret Radovich, 50, shot her husband, Theodore, 56, twice in the chest while he slept Tuesday morning and later, for some unexplained reason, returned to the bed.

"When he regained consciousness early today (Wednesday), he found his wife next to him in bed and pulled the gun out of her hand, shooting her once in each leg," said Police Chief William Nolan.

Nolan said Radovich also fired a shot out the window to attract attention and tried to throw the gun through a closed window.

The window broke, but the gun fell back inside the room, and Mrs. Radovich found it and reloaded it.

Radovich managed to crawl to another room, followed by his wife, who then shot him in the mouth, Nolan said.

But he still was able to make his way to another bedroom. There he broke a window in another attempt to attract attention.

Meanwhile, Nolan said, Mrs. Radovich shot herself.

When police arrived, after being summoned by neighbors, they found Mrs. Radovich in a hallway. She was on the floor, and her husband was in the other room.

Police said that before they could reach Mrs. Radovich, she took one more shot at her husband through the doorway. The bullet missed, and she fell unconscious.

She was dead on arrival at a hospital.

When it was over, Nolan said, authorities found notes apparently written by Mrs. Radovich that "said such things as life being tough and difficult, and one note made reference to another woman."

Police said Mrs. Radovich recently bought the handgun without telling her husband, and she had arranged the couple's insurance papers in a shoe box with explanatory notes for anyone who found them. Police would not say whether they had children or where Radovich worked.

Dodge truck sales booming

DETROIT, MICH.—Dodge Truck enters the 1978 model year with a wide—range of products designed to meet the personalized transportation needs of today's buyer, according to Al Imber, manager of truck sales for Chrysler Corporation.

Truck sales are booming,Imber said, and June marked the 18th consecutive month Dodge Truck sales established a new record.

"The upswing in truck sales is a result of the changes taking place in the truck market, changes which are moving trucks beyond their 'working class' status in the automotive market," Imber explained.

The truck market, he explained, has shifted from a commercially oriented market to one that is almost 50 percent personal use.

"More and more people are finding that today's pickups fill more than just a basic transportation need. Today's buyers are not looking for a motorized wheelbarrow," Imber said, "they are looking for personalized fun vehicles."

Recognizing this market potential, Dodge will continue its popular line of Adult Toys——Street Van, Warlock, Macho Power Wagon, and 4x4 Dodge(Macho ramcharger)——for 1978.

Six panel mounted radio options are offered for 1978 Dodge Trucks including an AM-40 channel CB and AM-FM-MX stereo 40 channel CB. Both have a CB monitor mode which allows a selected CB channel to override AM or FM reception.

Other radios are AM, FM, AM-FM-MX stero with 8 track tape.

Because more and more individuals are turning to light duty trucks and compact wagons to fill their towing needs, Chrysler's 1978 trailer assist packages include hitches.

The light duty assist packages for pickups and Ramcharger includes a new rear step bumper and a Class I hitch ball. The heavy duty package for these vehicles includes a Class IV load equalizing hitch.

Diesel power will be offered for the first time in Dodge light duty pickups. The optional engine for D and W150 and D and W200 models will be the six cylinder 243, produced by Mitsubishi Motors Corporation. Production of pickups with this optional diesel engine is slated for this fall.

The 1978 Dodge models are available in 14 different exterior colors, including four new metallics and two new straight shades.

Additional highlights of the 1978 models, as outlined by Imber, are:

LIGHT DUTY CONVENTIONAL

Diesel power will be offered for the first time in Dodge light duty trucks, providing customers with the prospect of cutting their fuel bills.

In addition to the new diesel, engineering refinements, an expanded list of trim options, and D300 crew cab Sweptline dual rear wheel model highlight the Dodge pickups for 1978.

For improved performance, all six cylinder 225—cubic—inch engines are 2— barrel carburetor. The change in carburetion provides an additional 10 horsepower.

Engineering refinements and features available for 1978 Dodge pickups include a tilt steering column option, new steering wheels, new bucket seats in Club Cabs, availability of Adventurer SE trim on all models, including crew cab and four—wheel models, and redesigned pickup bed inSweptline models.

RAMCHARGER

Ramcharger, Dodge's rugged sports utility vehicle, retains its functional appeal and adds a long list of convenience features and options designed to capture a bigger share of this fast growing market.

Among the new standard and optional features are a new front bench seat option for six passenger comfort, a tilt steering wheelcolumn, new bucket seats, and sun screen glass on the rear quarter and tailgate windows.

I Paul, the servant of Christ, am here in jail because of you — for preaching that you Gentiles are a part of God's house. No doubt you already know that God has given me this special work of showing God's favor to you Gentiles. God himself showed me this secret plan of his, that the Gentiles, too, are included in his kindness. I say this to explain to you how I know about these things. In olden times God did not share this plan with his people, but now he has revealed it by the Holy Spirit to his apostles.

Come meet Phyllis and Beth tonight at the Cooking School

NOTE: Tonight is the night for all area men, women and children both young and old to come out and enjoy some fun-filled cooking demonstrations with the latest appliances and also those hints which will help cut your food bill.

The event will begin at 7:30 p.m. and admission is free. Persons who do not have tickets may register at the door.

The school is being held at the Sikeston High School Field House. Hope to see you there tonight.

"It's not such a big leap from fashions to food," says vivacious Beth Hawes who left her job as a department manager at Niemann-Marcus in Dallas to become program coordinator of Progressive farmer (SOUTHERN KITCHENS Cooking Schools (Southern Living Cooking Schools).

"A few years ago the fashion in cooking was to make Boeuf Bourgignon. Then Boeuf Wellington was the rage. And then Quiche Lorraine. These are fun, but the best is still traditional Southern cooking . . . with some fresh ideas and taste treats to add variety for excitement and change. That's much of what we do at our cooking schools."

As program coordinator, Beth will be on stage introducing the program and drawing door prizes on Sept. 8 when Southern Kitchens Cooking School will be in full swing by 7:30 p.m. at Sikestno High School Fieldhouse sponsored by The Daily Standard. And everyone is invited to meet Beth and enjoy the big show. Much of Beth's activity is behind the scenes since the schedules the school, works with local merchants, and even, if necessary, washes a few dishes when the show is over. It is her job to see that everything runs smoothly when the curtain rises on an exciting and informative cooking performance.

Beth is a graduate of Southern Methodist University in Dallas where she held a Lloyd Price scholarship and was a member of Kappa Alpha Theta. She works with Phyliss Young, a skilled home economist on the (SOUTHERN KITCHENS Cooking School or Southern Living Cooking School) staff, who will do the cooking during the two hour program.

When you're invited into Phyllsi Young's kitchen on Sept. 8, you're in for a special treat. She will show you some of her favorite recipes for exciting new dishes, the latest in cookware and appliances, and if you're lucky, she'll even invite you on stage to taste her culinary treats.

A native of Montgomery, Alabama, Phyllis has been employed at the Progressive Farmer Company since fall of 1976. Her job as home economist for SOUTHERN KITCHENS Cooking School (Southern Living Cooking Schools) has many varied duties -- testing recipes, editing cookbooks, preparing food for photography, and traveling across several southern statses sharing her knowledge and experience with thousands of homemakes who love to cook and want to learn more.

Perhaps the most impressive part of Phyllis' presentation is her warm, personal approach toward her audiences. "The best part about cooking is sharing your recipes with others," she says. "And I have the opportunity to do that everyday." In any regular season, she might conduct as many as 15 demonstrations, with audiences totaling nearly 20,000 people.

After graduating from Auburn University, Phyllis taught home economics at the junior high school level. Even though she's quick to tell you that she loved her students and enjoyed her teaching experiences, she also states that she's having a wonderful time with her traveling kitchen and the many friends she's made in cities where cooking schools are conducted.

When she comes into town driving a station wagon loaded with utensils, sound and lighting equipment, brightly colored tablecloths and mixing bowls galore, it's hard to believe that she and her partner Beth Hawes will unload the equipment, put it into place on stage at Sikeston High School Field House, conduct an entertaining demonstration before over 1,000 people, reload that station wagon, and drive away to another city.

All this for a cooking demonstration? You'll have to come on Sept. 8, meet Phyllis and Beth, and see for yourself!

'White anklets are back'

By Erma Bombeck

Mothers of America! You have been given one more chance to be fashion pacesetters.

White anklets are back! They've been seen throughout Europe being worn with high-heeled shoes. I know it is only a matter of time before Princess Grace, Queen Elizabeth, Jackie Onassis and Barbara Walters are schlepping around in them.

Before you shake your head ans say, "No, it'll never work," let me assure you I went through the same humiliation route with white anklets that you went through back in the '40s and '50s.

I too was maligned by my family.

My sons self-destructed before my very eyes once when I appeared in white anklets on the playground . My husband said they made my legs look like tree stumps, and one day when a friend of my daughter's came to the house to play she said, "What team does your mother play for?"

We let them shame us into giving up our white socks. And what did we get in return? Pantyhose. You have to be in shape to wear pantyhose. Just ask Joe Namath. I personally never put on a pair of pantyhose without thinking I got a pair that was hatched prematurely and needed another few months in the egg.

Ah, the good old days of white anklets. They never sprung a run . . . never slid down over your hips when you coughed. . . never cut of circulation when you crossed your legs. White socks went with everything, winter and summer. And you never had cracked heels.

Remember the warm, fuzzy feeling you had in white socks? Critics are the first to point out how ridiculous they looked. Sour grapes. Have you ever seen yourself standing in front of the mirror in a pair of knee-highs and a pair of glasses?

The trouble with Mothers is they are never the pacesetters of anything. They borrow a few T-shirts and jeans from their sons, klutzy shoes and funky blouses from their daughters, sweaters from their husbands and a few dresses from their mothers. But they do not have one style that is exclusive, unique and theirs alone.

The white socks could do it for us. It could establish mothers as trendsetters. What have you got to lose -- except your ankles.

Have you got the guts?

Some cooks like to cook fresh pork spare ribs in water on top of the range before covering with a barbecue sauce and glazing in the oven. Other cooks put the uncooked ribs, cut in serving-size portions, on a rack in a roasting pan, cover the pan tightly and pre-cook them in the oven before adding the sauce.

Dear Ann Landers

What causes homosexuality?

Dear Ann Landers: Does anyone know what causes homosexuality? Our son told us a year ago he had chosen this lifestyle. We cannot accept it -- or him.

My husband blames his genes because he has two nephews who are gay. Yet the other five are straight. If it was a matter of genes, I say they all would have turned out gay.

Ours has been a beautiful marriage and we thank the Lord we have each other. We give one another strength to face this terrible thing that has happened to our life. Please enlighten us and millions of others who are -- Searching For Answers.

Dear Searching: Even the experts are sharply divided on whether or not homosexuality is an illness that warrants a psychiatric diagnosis or if it's an alternate lifestyle. They all seem to agree, however, that homosexuality is NOT inherited.

I am with those who believe homosexuality is a psychological disorder caused by one of a number of problems. It could be an excessive attachment to a "smothering" mother or a tyrannical, weak or absent father. To make matters more complicated, some individuals with these very backgrounds may develop into normal heterosexual adults. Finally, glandular factors cannot be entirely ruled out in some cases.

If you cannot accept your son's homosexuality, so be it, but I would ask you, please, don't reject him. Homosexuals do not "choose the lifestyle." It's far more complicated than that.

Dear Ann Landers: I need some answers and am depending on you for the true facts. Can you tell me a few things about silicone injections to increase the bust size?

1. Are they expensive?
2. Are there any serious side-effects?
3. How long does it take for them to work?
4. Can it be done privately without anyone knowing?
5. Where can I get these shots?

-- 18 and Flat As A Pancake

Dear Flat: You didn't ask the most important question: Are silicone injections legal? The answer is NO, they are not. They've been proven very dangerous.

Silicone implants ARE legal, however, and they are safe. Your best source of information is your family physician or the county medical society.

Dear Ann Landers: Please, please tell your readers that vasectomies are not 100 per cent effective. I am 43 years of age (unmarried) and learned a few weeks ago that I am pregnant. My gynecologist says my lover had a botched job or the sperm's normal pathway reformed as a result of a long-term healing process. Please print this as a warning to others. -- Bum Break

Dear B.B.: Six weeks after a vasectomy the male should have his sperm count checked. If it's zero, he is considered permanently sterile. What happened to your friend is most unusual -- but it's additional evidence that there are very few things in life one can be absolutely sure of -- forever.

Ann Landers discusses teenage drinking -- its myths, its realities. Learn the facts by reading "Booze and You -- For Teen-Agers Only," by Ann Landers. Send 50 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Ill. 60611.

Better than Charlie Brown's

The Eagles Club in Sikeston presented the 13-year-old All-Stars of Sikeston with this humorous cake last night, but they weren't insinuating that the team played like Charlie Brown's All-Stars. The Midwest Plains Regional champs were honored by the Eagles at last night's meeting.

Evert, Stove claim womens wins; Vilas, Solomon advance in mens

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (AP) — Chris Evert beat the past and Betty Stove beat the future to advance to their semifinal matchup at the U.S. Open tennis championships.

The top-seeded Miss Evert provided a barometer for Billie Jean King's continuing singles comeback Wednesday night with a 6-2, 6-0 victory over the former queen of women's tennis.

About 4½ hours earlier, Tracy Austin, the 14-year-old future queen of tennis, drove her Cinderella carriage to center court. But Miss Stove turned the clock to midnight with a powerful 6-2, 6-2 triumph.

In the other women's quarterfinals matches today, No. 2 seed Martina Navratilova, the Czech expatriate now playing out of Dallas, faced No. 10 Mima Jausovec of Yugoslavia and third-seeded Virginia Wade of Britain met Wendy Turnbull, the No. 12 seed from Australia.

With all the hoopla attached to Miss Austin, the most famous school girl this side of Amy Carter, a pair of men sneaked less dramatically into the semifinals.

Guillermo Vilas, the No. 4 seed from Argentina, could do no wrong in his 6-1, 6-1, 6-0 rout of unseeded Ray Moore of South Africa. Vilas has a Saturday semifinal date with Harold Solomon, the No. 12 seed from Silver Spring, Md., who wore down No. 10 Dick Stockton of Carrolton, Tex., 6-4, 6-4, 6-2.

The other semifinal pairing will be determined today. Brian Gottfried, the No. 3 seed from Lauderhill, Fla., plays surprising Corrado Barazzutti of Italy and second-seeded Jimmy Connors, Belleville, Ill., meets fifth-rated Manuel Orantes of Spain.

While school bells were beginning to ring around the country, Miss Austin — set to enter the ninth grade in Rolling Hills, Calif. a week from today — was given a professional tennis lesson by Miss Stove, the 32-year-old native of The Netherlands.

"She just overpowered me," said Tracy, standing tall on the court at 5 feet and 90 pounds. "I was lucky to get in a rally. Most of the time she just put the ball away off her serve, and hit winners off mine. She was too strong for me."

Miss Stove gave Tracy a professional beating because she was able to see her pig-tailed opponent as the enemy, not just some cute little kid.

"Five or six years ago, I would have been sentimental, too," said the 6-foot, 160-pound Miss Stove. "And I would have lost to her.

"I never saw Tracy at all. I only saw the ball.

"I considered her a competitor, a very good competitor. She has a real good future."

Ms. King, a four-time champion here, had a wonderful past. But if her comeback from knee surgery and a year's retirement from tournament singles doesn't progress, she hinted that she would retire permanently.

"I'm really ticked with my play," said the person most responsible for the growth of women's tennis. "I played the big points badly. Chris played them much tougher.

"I better be ready by October or November, or that's it."

Royals win 8th straight

SEATTLE (AP) — Kansas City Manager Whitey Herzog says the Royals, who won their eighth game in a row with a 10-7 victory over Seattle, are more relaxed now than at the same time a year ago.

During last year's pennant drive, "we didn't hit real well down the stretch," Herzog said.

On Wednesday night, however, the Royals ripped Mariner pitchers for 18 hits and brought their scoring total to 28 runs in their past three games against the expansion team.

"Those balls are finding holes," said Seattle Manager Darrell Johnson. "In the first inning, they scored a run on three medium-speed ground balls.

"They had seeing-eye dogs. When you're going well, that's what happens."

Kansas City's George Brett and Darrell Porter each slammed four hits. Porter's second homer of the game gave the Royals the lead for good in the fifth inning.

Brett, Joe LaHoud, Hal McRae, Al Cowens and Porter all drove in two runs each.

LaHoud and the Royals' No. 9 hitter, Frank White, each had three hits. White scored three runs and stole two bases. Porter also scored three times.

"Didn't Ruppert hit that ball?" Herzog said. "It went right down to the last out."

The Mariners jumped on Kansas City starter Andy Hassler and reliever Larry Gura for six runs in the third to take a 7-4 lead. Dan Meyer's two-run double, Stanton's run-scoring double and RBI singles by Juan Bernhardt and Jimmy Sexton keyed the rally.

Seattle lost the services of third baseman Bill Stein for about a week. Stein was hit in the left shoulder by Hassler. He was replaced by Larry Milbourne. X-rays revealed a hairline fracture.

Kansas City tied the score in the fourth with three runs on only two hits. Seattle reliever Enrique Romo, 6-10, who gave up Porter's second homer, beaned McRae with the bases loaded to force in one run. LaHoud's sacrifice fly scored the second run and the third crossed the plate as Cowens grounded out.

The Royals picked up insurance runs on Brett's double and single in the fifth and seventh innings.

Meanwhile, Kansas City relievers Mark Littell, 7-4, and Doug Bird shut out Seattle on four hits over the final six innings.

Brett, McRae and LaHoud opened the game with singles for one run off Seattle starter Glenn Abbott. Cowens's ground ball scored another.

Pirates not giving up yet

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Pittsburgh Pirate Bill Robinson says the Philadelphia Phillies won't take the title to the National League East without a fight.

"Philadelphia is not going to walk away with it," Robinson said Wednesday night after the Pirates defeated the St. Louis Cardinals 5-4. The win put the second-place Pirates six games behind the divison-leading Phillies.

"It's a good thing the Phillies are playing the clubs in our division. The teams are tougher. They're not going to lay down for them."

Robinson led the Pirates to the win over St. Louis by driving in two runs and scoring two of his own on consecutive doubles. He hit one in the first inning and another in the third.

The Cardinal's Lou Brock prevented Robinson's first double from leaving the park. He leaped high above the left-field fence. The ball hit his glove above the top of the wall and bounced back into the field.

But even though he was busy on the field, Robinson couldn't help but notice the scoreboard and the Phillies 6-2 win over the New York Mets.

"I saw when the Mets were ahead 1-0. Then the Phillies were ahead 4-1. They're pretty hot right now. But the only thing we can do is keep on winning. We're still breathing down their backs."

The Pirate win went to relief pitcher Terry Forster. He stayed in the game five innings until a stiff pitching arm forced him to retire.

Forster was relieved by Grant Jackson who held the Cardinals until the top of the ninth when he gave up consecutive home runs to Ted Simmons and Keith Hernandez. Kent Tekulve then came into the game to earn his sixth save.

"It was the first time I pitched in over a month and a half," Forster said. "I wasn't consistent in the first and fifth innings. I was throwing sinking fast balls away from the batters and then I would come in with a real hard slider."

Directions to Aquinas were misleading

Directions to Ferguson Junior High S chool in Florissant, Mo., were misleading as reported to the Standard earlier, Sikeston High School officials learned this morning.

It was reported by an assistant coach that the turnoff onto January Avenue from Florissant Road is much further than one block, which was the impression given to the high school by St. Thomas Aquinas officials.

Here are the complete instructions again, for those wishing to attend the Bulldog-Aquinas game Friday evening at 7:30.

Take Interstate 55 North from Sikeston and exit at I-270 West, south of St. Louis. Take I-270 clockwise around the city to Florissant and exit at Florisant Road. Turn right at Florissant Road and continue to January Avenue (two or three miles, not one block) and turn right again. The field is on the right, just past January Park, which is on the corner of January Avenue and Florissant Road.

SHS Athletic Director Steve Borgsmiller said that Aquinas will charge $1.50 per person for admission. Persons from Sikeston wishing to attend should allow at least three hours driving time to get to Florissant.

Block likes Tigers' chances

By MIKE MARSH
Daily Standard

CARUTHERSVILLE -- The Tigers of Carutherville will begin, their 1977 campaign under the guidance of new head coach Larry Block. Block brings a fine coaching background to a team that has been decimated by graduation.

At first glance, it would look as if the Tigers will not perform up to the standards of their 7-3 record of last year. However, Coach Block does not see it in that light.

When asked about his chances to win the Southern Division crown, Block replied, "A lot depends on Friday night. If we get by Doniphan, we've got a good chance to win the conference." For a new coach to come on the scene and say this about a team with only three returning starters is surprising. But Block does have some basis for his statement as he looks ahead to his first Southern Division race.

Wendell McGill and Brad Simmons are two of the returners and give the Tigers the unusual luxury of two fine quarterbacks. Simmons and McGill ranked 6-7 among the top ten passers last year and according to Block their time will be about evenly split. McGill was particularly effective as he hit 55.6 per cent of his passes for 302 yards.

Dan Webster will be the only other returner as he takes his place as the Tiger halfback. Webster saw limited action last year because of Henry Warren (475 yards) and Len Townsend (620 yards). Block is extremely high on the senior as he said matter-of-factly, "If he stays healthy he'll go for a thousand (yards rushing)."

Even though so many starters were lost from last year's team. Block will have no problem with leadership as he has 19 seniors on his roster. The Tiger helmsman will also have the benefits from a fresh squad as no one will bo both ways. (A rare commodity in the Semo Conference.)

This situation might change as the season draws towards its conclusion when the Tigers must play the likes of Sikeston, Chaffee and Kennett. At this point, Block feels that "We'll give each boy a chance." Block went on to say that, "We've got some good people like McGill and Webster, but its going to have to be a team activity."

Coach Block, who came to Caruthersville via a stint as offensive coach of the Cape Central Tigers, does have some reservations in regards to his line play. The young men who battle in the pits will have good size, a bout 185 per man, but little or no playing experience. The defense as a whole will have the problem of no experienced personnel returning, but with the likes of McGill and Webster, the Tigers could claw their way to the top.

Better than Charlie Brown's

The Eagles Club in Sikeston presented the 13-year-old All-Stars of Sikeston with this humorous cake last night, but they weren't insinuating that the team played like Charlie Brown's All-Stars. The Midwest Plains Regional champs were honored by the Eagles at last night's meeting.

Evert, Stove claim womens wins; Vilas, Solomon advance in mens

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (AP) — Chris Evert beat the past and Betty Stove beat the future to advance to their semifinal matchup at the U.S. Open tennis championships.

The top-seeded Miss Evert provided a barometer for Billie Jean King's continuing singles comeback Wednesday night with a 6-2, 6-0 victory over the former queen of women's tennis.

About 4½ hours earlier, Tracy Austin, the 14-year-old future queen of tennis, drove her Cinderella carriage to center court. But Miss Stove turned the clock to midnight with a powerful 6-2, 6-2 triumph.

In the other women's quarterfinals matches today, No. 2 seed Martina Navratilova, the Czech expatriate now playing out of Dallas, faced No. 10 Mima Jausovec of Yugoslavia and third-seeded Virginia Wade of Britain met Wendy Turnbull, the No. 12 seed from Australia.

With all the hoopla attached to Miss Austin, the most famous school girl this side of Amy Carter, a pair of men sneaked less dramatically into the semifinals.

Guillermo Vilas, the No. 4 seed from Argentina, could do no wrong in his 6-1, 6-1, 6-0 rout of unseeded Ray Moore of South Africa. Vilas has a Saturday semifinal date with Harold Solomon, the No. 12 seed from Silver Spring, Md., who wore down No. 10 Dick Stockton of Carrolton, Tex., 6-4, 6-4, 6-2.

The other semifinal pairing will be determined today. Brian Gottfried, the No. 3 seed from Lauderhill, Fla., plays surprising Corrado Barazzutti of Italy and second-seeded Jimmy Connors, Belleville, Ill., meets fifth-rated Manuel Orantes of Spain.

While school bells were beginning to ring around the country, Miss Austin — set to enter the ninth grade in Rolling Hills, Calif. a week from today — was given a professional tennis lesson by Miss Stove, the 32-year-old native of The Netherlands.

"She just overpowered me," said Tracy, standing tall on the court at 5 feet and 90 pounds. "I was lucky to get in a rally. Most of the time she just put the ball away off her serve, and hit winners off mine. She was too strong for me."

Miss Stove gave Tracy a professional beating because she was able to see her pig-tailed opponent as the enemy, not just some cute little kid.

"Five or six years ago, I would have been sentimental, too," said the 6-foot, 160-pound Miss Stove. "And I would have lost to her.

"I never saw Tracy at all. I only saw the ball.

"I considered her a competitor, a very good competitor. She has a real good future."

Ms. King, a four-time champion here, had a wonderful past. But if her comeback from knee surgery and a year's retirement from tournament singles doesn't progress, she hinted that she would retire permanently.

"I'm really ticked with my play," said the person most responsible for the growth of women's tennis. "I played the big points badly. Chris played them much tougher.

"I better be ready by October or November, or that's it."

Royals win 8th straight

SEATTLE (AP) — Kansas City Manager Whitey Herzog says the Royals, who won their eighth game in a row with a 10-7 victory over Seattle, are more relaxed now than at the same time a year ago.

During last year's pennant drive, "we didn't hit real well down the stretch," Herzog said.

On Wednesday night, however, the Royals ripped Mariner pitchers for 18 hits and brought their scoring total to 28 runs in their past three games against the expansion team.

"Those balls are finding holes," said Seattle Manager Darrell Johnson. "In the first inning, they scored a run on three medium-speed ground balls.

"They had seeing-eye dogs. When you're going well, that's what happens."

Kansas City's George Brett and Darrell Porter each slammed four hits. Porter's second homer of the game gave the Royals the lead for good in the fifth inning.

Brett, Joe LaHoud, Hal McRae, Al Cowens and Porter all drove in two runs each.

LaHoud and the Royals' No. 9 hitter, Frank White, each had three hits. White scored three runs and stole two bases. Porter also scored three times.

"Didn't Ruppert hit that ball?" Herzog said. "It went right down to the last out."

The Mariners jumped on Kansas City starter Andy Hassler and reliever Larry Gura for six runs in the third to take a 7-4 lead. Dan Meyer's two-run double, Stanton's run-scoring double and RBI singles by Juan Bernhardt and Jimmy Sexton keyed the rally.

Seattle lost the services of third baseman Bill Stein for about a week. Stein was hit in the left shoulder by Hassler. He was replaced by Larry Milbourne. X-rays revealed a hairline fracture.

Kansas City tied the score in the fourth with three runs on only two hits. Seattle reliever Enrique Romo, 6-10, who gave up Porter's second homer, beaned McRae with the bases loaded to force in one run. LaHoud's sacrifice fly scored the second run and the third crossed the plate as Cowens grounded out.

The Royals picked up insurance runs on Brett's double and single in the fifth and seventh innings.

Meanwhile, Kansas City relievers Mark Littell, 7-4, and Doug Bird shut out Seattle on four hits over the final six innings.

Brett, McRae and LaHoud opened the game with singles for one run off Seattle starter Glenn Abbott. Cowens's ground ball scored another.

Pirates not giving up yet

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Pittsburgh Pirate Bill Robinson says the Philadelphia Phillies won't take the title to the National League East without a fight.

"Philadelphia is not going to walk away with it," Robinson said Wednesday night after the Pirates defeated the St. Louis Cardinals 5-4. The win put the second-place Pirates six games behind the divison-leading Phillies.

"It's a good thing the Phillies are playing the clubs in our division. The teams are tougher. They're not going to lay down for them."

Robinson led the Pirates to the win over St. Louis by driving in two runs and scoring two of his own on consecutive doubles. He hit one in the first inning and another in the third.

The Cardinal's Lou Brock prevented Robinson's first double from leaving the park. He leaped high above the left-field fence. The ball hit his glove above the top of the wall and bounced back into the field.

But even though he was busy on the field, Robinson couldn't help but notice the scoreboard and the Phillies 6-2 win over the New York Mets.

"I saw when the Mets were ahead 1-0. Then the Phillies were ahead 4-1. They're pretty hot right now. But the only thing we can do is keep on winning. We're still breathing down their backs."

The Pirate win went to relief pitcher Terry Forster. He stayed in the game five innings until a stiff pitching arm forced him to retire.

Forster was relieved by Grant Jackson who held the Cardinals until the top of the ninth when he gave up consecutive home runs to Ted Simmons and Keith Hernandez. Kent Tekulve then came into the game to earn his sixth save.

"It was the first time I pitched in over a month and a half," Forster said. "I wasn't consistent in the first and fifth innings. I was throwing sinking fast balls away from the batters and then I would come in with a real hard slider."

THE COLLEGES

With TCU idle, the comedic relief on college football's first weekend was supplied by Rutgers, whose 18-game winning streak -- the most meaningless in college football -- dissolved in a 45-7 loss to Penn State.

Trojan supporters meanwhile were shocked by Southern Mississippi's 42-19 victory over Troy State.

Much as it would rather not, TCU debuts Saturday against 20th-rated SMU (3-8 last year) in an early season test of weakness.

Elsewhere, No. 17 New Mexico is confident of victory over No. 2-rated Hawaii despite the fact that the Lobos must make the entire trip to Honolulu by bus.

And in Chicago, the College All-Stars refused to vacate Soldiers Field.

THE PROS

Players on The Bottom Ten pro teams labor in obscurity for the most part. However, there is one all-star team that anyone, be he superstar or bench-warmer, is capable of making: The NFL All-Litigation team.

It's composed of players involved in legal action each year, and the numbers seem to grow annually.

The most intriguing recent case is the $5 million lawsuit of Pittsburgh cornerback Mel Blount against his own coach, Chuck Noll, who declared that Blount is part of football's "criminal element." If what Noll says is true, wouldn't he be an accessory before the fact for having started Blount?

The 1977 nominees so far:

Offense: QB -- Roman Gabriel (Philadelphia) alimony suit, pending; RB -- Tony Dorsett (Dallas) assault, charges dropped; RB-- Robin Earl (Chicago) welfare fraud, guilty; RB -- Al Hunter (Seattle) lawsuit, dropped; RB -- Booby Clark (Cincinnati) object of lawsuit, dismissed; WR -- Lynn Swann (Pittsburgh) witness, lawsuit; TE -- Charles Young (Los Angeles) NFL Players Association lawsuit, dismissed; T -- Danny Carlton (Miami) assault, guilty.

Second IN COMMAND

Why is it that when the Sikeston Bulldogs defense plays its best, the opposition many times will score?

Friday's 7-6 defeat of Farmington has to go down in the records as one of the finest exhibitions of defensive football ever turned in by a Sikeston team. A year ago, the best effort by the Bulldog "D" was against Charleston. Despite being held to just 14 total yards, the Jays also scored in a 14-6 loss to Sikeston.

The reason the 105-yard surrender to the Knights can be mentioned in the same breath as last year's total stoppage of the Bluejays is, obviously, that Farmington was a much better or offensive team than the one Charleston fielded last year -- on paper at least.

The hitting on the field Friday was, at times, ferocious. Senior lineman Alfie White received most of the accolades at the game's conclusion, as he will all year long. The 200-pounder is, probably, without equal among district linemen. But there were others who contributed as well -- at least 10 others.

With Farmington concentrating its blocking on White, strong and bulky Marty Nelson spent a good part of his time on the field in the Knight backfield. A remarkable stat revealed after the game was the number of sacks (tackles for a loss of yardage.) The defensive end play was usually outstanding. Only two plays netted more than 10 yards and the wide stuff simply wasn't there for the Farmington offense. The ends and linebackers kept turning the plays in.

Linzie Lambert, Glynn Felton, Scott Heeb and Brent Keefer all played outstanding ball, as did the defensive backs. But the hardest hit of the evening was by 160-pound defensive back Mike Hunt, a senior starting his first game. Hunt put a shoulder pad into Lance Evans during the third period so hard that the "pop" was heard all over the stadium.

Farmington shouldn't have scored. Several times the Bulldog defense found itself in poor field position and only once did it surrender points. That time it took the visitors three plays to push the ball in from the two-yard line and then the runner's head was all that broke the plane of the goal line.

It was indeed an impressive performance, fellows, and many who were at the game are certainly proud of you!

Now, if we can just score some more points...

Of course you must remember that, with the exception of the Poplar Bluff opponent (Jonesboro, Ark.), Sikeston's opposition was the strongest seen by any Northern Division team. The offense may have matured by the time the conference competition gets underway.

Last Friday's action provided many area fans with "food for thought."

Many things simply didn't turn out like they were expected to "on paper."

The Poplar Bluff Mules were preseason favorites and were talking state playoffs. Well, the playoffs are out of the picture now. Since no one knows how truly strong Jonesboro was but the Mules, PBHS can't simply be written off, but their reputation has suffered.

Looking extremely strong were Perryville, Cape Central and Illmo-Scott City. Dexter has a further chance to prove it has arrived this week at Chaffee.

Although this week's Sikeston game is an important one, the Bulldogs' chances for a conference repeat will best be revealed in two weeks when they plays Perryville.

The Chicago Bears defeated the Washington Redskins, 73-0, in the 1940 NFL championship game and two years later lost to them, 14-6, for the same title.

The last heavyweight championship bout fought with bare knuckles was on July 8, 1889, at Richburg, Miss. John L. Sullivan defeated Jake Kilrain in 75 rounds.

Jim Jeffries fought three heavyweight title bouts at New York's Coney Island and won all three.

Hall of Famer pitcher Lefty Grove led the American League in earned run average a record nine times.

Second IN COMMAND

Why is it that when the Sikeston Bulldogs defense plays its best, the opposition many times will score?

Friday's 7-6 defeat of Farmington has to go down in the records as one of the finest exhibitions of defensive football ever turned in by a Sikeston team. A year ago, the best effort by the Bulldog "D" was against Charleston. Despite being held to just 14 total yards, the Jays also scored in a 14-6 loss to Sikeston.

The reason the 105-yard surrender to the Knights can be mentioned in the same breath as last year's total stoppage of the Bluejays is, obviously, that Farmington was a much better or offensive team than the one Charleston fielded last year -- on paper at least.

The hitting on the field Friday was, at times, ferocious. Senior lineman Alfie White received most of the accolades at the game's conclusion, as he will all year long. The 200-pounder is, probably, without equal among district linemen. But there were others who contributed as well -- at least 10 others.

With Farmington concentrating its blocking on White, strong and bulky Marty Nelson spent a good part of his time on the field in the Knight backfield. A remarkable stat revealed after the game was the number of sacks (tackles for a loss of yardage.) The defensive end play was usually outstanding. Only two plays netted more than 10 yards and the wide stuff simply wasn't there for the Farmington offense. The ends and linebackers kept turning the plays in.

Linzie Lambert, Glynn Felton, Scott Heeb and Brent Keefer all played outstanding ball, as did the defensive backs. But the hardest hit of the evening was by 160-pound defensive back Mike Hunt, a senior starting his first game. Hunt put a shoulder pad into Lance Evans during the third period so hard that the "pop" was heard all over the stadium.

Farmington shouldn't have scored. Several times the Bulldog defense found itself in poor field position and only once did it surrender points. That time it took the visitors three plays to push the ball in from the two-yard line and then the runner's head was all that broke the plane of the goal line.

It was indeed an impressive performance, fellows, and many who were at the game are certainly proud of you!

Now, if we can just score some more points...

Of course you must remember that, with the exception of the Poplar Bluff opponent (Jonesboro, Ark.), Sikeston's opposition was the strongest seen by any Northern Division team. The offense may have matured by the time the conference competition gets underway.

Last Friday's action provided many area fans with "food for thought."

Many things simply didn't turn out like they were expected to "on paper."

The Poplar Bluff Mules were preseason favorites and were talking state playoffs. Well, the playoffs are out of the picture now. Since no one knows how truly strong Jonesboro was but the Mules, PBHS can't simply be written off, but their reputation has suffered.

Looking extremely strong were Perryville, Cape Central and Illmo-Scott City. Dexter has a further chance to prove it has arrived this week at Chaffee.

Although this week's Sikeston game is an important one, the Bulldogs' chances for a conference repeat will best be revealed in two weeks when they plays Perryville.

The Chicago Bears defeated the Washington Redskins, 73-0, in the 1940 NFL championship game and two years later lost to them, 14-6, for the same title.

The last heavyweight championship bout fought with bare knuckles was on July 8, 1889, at Richburg, Miss. John L. Sullivan defeated Jake Kilrain in 75 rounds.

Jim Jeffries fought three heavyweight title bouts at New York's Coney Island and won all three.

Hall of Famer pitcher Lefty Grove led the American League in earned run average a record nine times.

The development and plans for a radio station for Sikeston were outlined by Harry Young in a talk made last night at a Chamber of Commerce meeting. The idea of a radio station for Sikeston was first had by Mr. Young in 1914 but it did not develop until 1941, he stated. A license for a station was granted May 3, 1947 and a number of locations for the tower were submitted. Difficulties were found by the federal government with four of the five locations, and the fifth was too far out. The 250-watt, unlimited time station will have a radius of approximately 12 miles at night and 60 miles during the day. It will broadcast at 1400 on the radio dial.

Parent's school visits scheduled

Invitations are being extended to parents of Middle School sixth graders and parents of Junior High eighth graders to visit, meet the counselor and tour the school in which their child is enrolled.

Invitations will be mailed about a week in advance. School officials hope this will provide an opportunity for parents to see students on campus, receive information concerning the rules and regulations of the school, meet counselors and principals and have an opportunity to ask questions.

The first Middle School meeting will be Sept. 12. The first Junior High meeting will be Sept. 13. If for some reason, a parent cannot come at the scheduled time he may call the principal so arrangements can be made for another day.

The time schedule will be: 8 a.m., meet in cafeteria, observe the students as they move about; 8:15 a.m. the principal will discuss the policies of the school, introduce the guidance personnel and conduct a question-and-answer session; and 8:45 a.m. tour of the facilities.

Mayor prohibits adverse statements by employes

CHAFFEE— As a result of news items appearing in a Cape Girardeau newspaper last week, Mayor Capshaw has issued an executive order prohibiting employes of the city of Chaffee from making verbal or written statements concerning the city, unless the statements are cleared by the department's head and the mayor's office.

Mayor Capshaw's order was made an official record in the City Council's minutes, at Tuesday night's City Council meeting. Mayor Capshaw's order is as follows:

From this date forward there shall be no statements, verbal or written, given to anyone which can be interpreted as being derogatory or harmful to the City of Chaffee. Any statement by any employe of the City of Chaffee that falls in this category shall first be cleared by the particular department head and the mayor's office. Any city employee violating this order shall be subject to dismissal. This order is in no way to be construed as a violation of freedom of speech; it is solely to keep any city employe from speaking officially for the City of Chaffee without the above procedure.

The news items were the result of statements made by Chaffee police Sgt. Robt. Grubbs, citing the need for additional employes in the Chaffee Police Department.

Sgt. Grubbs stated that the crime rate is growing in Chaffee as it is nationwide.

The Chaffee Police Department consists of five full time officers, 10 auxiliary police, two well equipped radio patrol cars, and a set of police radios at the police department headquarters.

When additional help is needed, the Scott County Sheriff's Department and the State Highway Patrol can be called for assistance.

Chief RayOlive has organized the Chaffee Police force and malicious mischief and other minor infractions of the law is at an alltime low.

Drug problems and infiltration of out of town hoodlums have increased as Sgt. Grubbs has stated and the additon of police dispatchers would add to the strength of the police department. The four dispatchers even at minimum wage would cost the already financially troubled city about $20,000 per year. If the money was spent to hire the dispatchers, it would have to be taken from other city expenditures.

Any request for assistance by the Chaffee Police Department is made by Chief Olive to the Chaffee Police Commissioner. The police commissioner in turn makes the request to the mayor and City Council.

Course is offered to educators

CAPE GIRARDEAU -- A special course for adult basic education teachers and administrators has been added to the list of evening classes being offered during the fall semester on the Southeast Missouri State University campus.

Enrollment and the first session of the course, Foundations of Basic Education, will be at 6 p.m. today in Room R402 of the Scully Education and Psychology Building. It will meet each Wednesday evening thereafter.

The class may be taken for three semester hours of either graduate of undergraduate credit. It will provide students with a background in adult education, adquaint them with characteristics of the adult learner, help develop skills and techniques used in effective programs, and provide an understanding of the adult basic education curriculum.

Dr. Tom Hill will be the instructor. Cost is $60.

The course counts toward Missouri's requirement of 21 semester hours of adult basic education for life certification in the specialty.

Additional information may be obtained from Howard Brown, coordinator of conferences and off-campus credit courses at Southeast Missouri State.

The development and plans for a radio station for Sikeston were outlined by Harry Young in a talk made last night at a Chamber of Commerce meeting. The idea of a radio station for Sikeston was first had by Mr. Young in 1914 but it did not develop until 1941, he stated. A license for a station was granted May 3, 1947 and a number of locations for the tower were submitted. Difficulties were found by the federal government with four of the five locations, and the fifth was too far out. The 250-watt, unlimited time station will have a radius of approximately 12 miles at night and 60 miles during the day. It will broadcast at 1400 on the radio dial.

Parent's school visits scheduled

Invitations are being extended to parents of Middle School sixth graders and parents of Junior High eighth graders to visit, meet the counselor and tour the school in which their child is enrolled.

Invitations will be mailed about a week in advance. School officials hope this will provide an opportunity for parents to see students on campus, receive information concerning the rules and regulations of the school, meet counselors and principals and have an opportunity to ask questions.

The first Middle School meeting will be Sept. 12. The first Junior High meeting will be Sept. 13. If for some reason, a parent cannot come at the scheduled time he may call the principal so arrangements can be made for another day.

The time schedule will be: 8 a.m., meet in cafeteria, observe the students as they move about; 8:15 a.m. the principal will discuss the policies of the school, introduce the guidance personnel and conduct a question-and-answer session; and 8:45 a.m. tour of the facilities.

Mayor prohibits adverse statements by employes

CHAFFEE— As a result of news items appearing in a Cape Girardeau newspaper last week, Mayor Capshaw has issued an executive order prohibiting employes of the city of Chaffee from making verbal or written statements concerning the city, unless the statements are cleared by the department's head and the mayor's office.

Mayor Capshaw's order was made an official record in the City Council's minutes, at Tuesday night's City Council meeting. Mayor Capshaw's order is as follows:

From this date forward there shall be no statements, verbal or written, given to anyone which can be interpreted as being derogatory or harmful to the City of Chaffee. Any statement by any employe of the City of Chaffee that falls in this category shall first be cleared by the particular department head and the mayor's office. Any city employee violating this order shall be subject to dismissal. This order is in no way to be construed as a violation of freedom of speech; it is solely to keep any city employe from speaking officially for the City of Chaffee without the above procedure.

The news items were the result of statements made by Chaffee police Sgt. Robt. Grubbs, citing the need for additional employes in the Chaffee Police Department.

Sgt. Grubbs stated that the crime rate is growing in Chaffee as it is nationwide.

The Chaffee Police Department consists of five full time officers, 10 auxiliary police, two well equipped radio patrol cars, and a set of police radios at the police department headquarters.

When additional help is needed, the Scott County Sheriff's Department and the State Highway Patrol can be called for assistance.

Chief RayOlive has organized the Chaffee Police force and malicious mischief and other minor infractions of the law is at an alltime low.

Drug problems and infiltration of out of town hoodlums have increased as Sgt. Grubbs has stated and the adition of police dispatchers would add to the strength of the police department. The four dispatchers even at minimum wage would cost the already financially troubled city about $20,000 per year. If the money was spent to hire the dispatchers, it would have to be taken from other city expenditures.

Any request for assistance by the Chaffee Police Department is made by Chief Olive to the Chaffee Police Commissioner. The police commissioner in turn makes the request to the mayor and City Council.

New Madrid Council sets annual tax rate

NEW MADRID -- The City Council set the rate for the annual tax assessment, granted permission for a liquor license, discussed the purchase of a new police car and handled other matters of business in regular session Tuesday night.

The annual tax rate was set at $1.85 per $100 assessed valuation, the same as the previous year, with $1 earmarked for the general revenue fund, 10 cents for cemetery maintenance and 75 cents for retirement of bonded indebtness.

Mary Singleton, 830 Second St., was granted permission for a 3.2 per cent beer license at the premises formerly known as the Harlem Cafe at 601 Russell St., providing that she complies with the state licensing requirements.

The purchase of a new police car was discussed with Marshall Virgil "Flip" Dees recommending to the council that a unit be purchased with a so-called "police package", which includes a larger engine, increased capacity cooling system and stronger frame. Specifications were ordered drawn up and bids be requested.

Fire Chief H.H. "Bud" Townsend requested that a fire plug be installed on the premises of the high school on Highway 61 north and this was authorized by the council.

On discussion on a request to provide electricity to a business firm outside the city limits, which is now being served by another power source, the possibility of annexation of the property was considered, but it was the council's opinion that this is not feasible at this time and also that probably the existing utility would still have a legal right to provide the service even though the property was annexed.

Administrator Don Lloyd advised that the street sweeper had broken down and so far he has been unable to have it repaired locally. A service truck has been requested from St. Louis and if the sweeper cannot be repaired economically then purchase of a new one would be advised.

Street repairs were discussed and the council agreed to try to have some repairs made and to consider paving the remaining gravel streets with an asphalt coating for an estimated cost of $3 per property foot.

HAZELWOOD, Mo. (AP) — A St. Louis County woman was electrocuted Tuesday while trimming a hedge in her front yard, authorities said.

New Army study could put women in combat environment

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army is conducting a major new study which could result in women serving under fire in a future war, officials say.

The study, the most detailed of its kind ever conducted by the Army, is aimed at establishing how women can fit best into the service structure and how many can be used effectively.

Army officials said Thursday there is no intention to change longstanding policy barring women from a direct combat role — as an infantry soldier, machine-gunner, or member of a tank crew. But they said they are looking at how women might serve in what they call a "combat environment."

As the officials explained the concept, women eventually might be assigned to signal, military police, transportation, maintenance or medical units with a role in the battle zones.

Traditionally, women soldiers have been kept far to the rear in higher headquarters or hospitals, although women nurses sometimes have been exposed to shellfire in past wars.

Meanwhile, leaders of women's organizations appealed to Congress on Thursday for more jobs for women in the armed forces.

Testifying before a Joint Economic Committee panel, they said expanding participation of women in the armed forces would result in greater military effectiveness.

One witness, retired Col. Mary A. Halaren, a former director of the Women's Army Corps, testified that WACs served in London during World War II bombing raids. "No one ever asked for a transfer to a safe billet," she said.

"There are women, as well as men, who crack under stress, who cannot take pressure, but working with men and women over the last 50 years, both in and out of the Army, has convinced me that it is the individual and not the gender that determines a person's strength under pressure," she said.

The Army study is being carried out in several sections, with most of the results due for consideration next spring by Army Secretary Clifford Alexander and Gen. Bernard Rogers, Army chief of staff.

One of the most important tests involves about 200 women who will go into the field with units in Western Europe this month. The purpose is to judge how women stand up under rough conditions of extended field duty.

Although women started serving with the Army in numbers during World War II, they were limited strictly until recent years to medical or clerical jobs. But 92 per cent of the skills in the Army now are open to women.

Mrs. Wallace leaves governor's mansion

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — With her six-year marriage to Gov. George C. Wallace apparently coming to an end, Cornelia Wallace has instructed her attorneys to "do what is necessary" to protect her.

Whether that means a divorce, Mrs. Wallace, 38, wouldn't say for certain Tuesday, as she had her personal belongings moved from the executive mansion.

But Montgomery attorney Ira DeMent said Tuesday evening that he and two other attorneys representing Mrs. Wallace — George Dean of Destin, Fla., and John Kohn of Montgomery — soon will discuss with the governor's attorney an "amicable settlement."

DeMent said the governor was told Tuesday afternoon as his wife supervised the packing of her belongings that his attorney would be contacted.

According to DeMent, Wallace's response was simply, "Fine."

Wallace's attorney, Maury Smith, was unavailable for comment.

It was Smith's name that appeared on a divorce petition that surfaced a month ago, apparently drawn up on the governor's behalf, but unsigned by anyone. Nor was it filed in any court.

The document cited "complete incompatiblity of temperament" and an "irretrievable breakdown of the marriage" as Wallace's reasons for seeking to end the marriage.

Mrs. Wallace left the executive mansion Tuesday, accompanied by DeMent and Dean. In a brief statement issued as a moving van stood ready to take her belongings from the mansion, she said:

"I have struggled a long time to preserve my marriage. I have left the mansion, for I can no longer endure the vulgarity, threats and abuse. I have instructed my lawyers to do what is necessary to protect me. I have nothing further to say at this time."

"There are women, as well as men, who crack under stress, who cannot take pressure, but working with men and women over the last 50 years, both in and out of the Army, has convinced me that it is the individual and not the gender that determines a person's strength under pressure," she said.

The Army study is being carried out in several sections, with most of the results due for consideration next spring by Army Secretary Clifford Alexander and Gen. Bernard Rogers, Army chief of staff.

One of the most important tests involves about 200 women who will go into the field with units in Western Europe this month. The purpose is to judge how women stand up under rough conditions of extended field duty.

Although women started serving with the Army in numbers during World War II, they were limited strictly until recent years to medical or clerical jobs. But 92 per cent of the skills in the Army now are open to women.

Mrs. Wallace leaves governor's mansion

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — With her six-year marriage to Gov. George C. Wallace apparently coming to an end, Cornelia Wallace has instructed her attorneys to "do what is necessary" to protect her.

Whether that means a divorce, Mrs. Wallace, 38, wouldn't say for certain Tuesday, as she had her personal belongings moved from the executive mansion.

But Montgomery attorney Ira DeMent said Tuesday evening that he and two other attorneys representing Mrs. Wallace — George Dean of Destin, Fla., and John Kohn of Montgomery — soon will discuss with the governor's attorney an "amicable settlement."

DeMent said the governor was told Tuesday afternoon as his wife supervised the packing of her belongings that his attorney would be contacted.

According to DeMent, Wallace's response was simply, "Fine."

Wallace's attorney, Maury Smith, was unavailable for comment.

It was Smith's name that appeared on a divorce petition that surfaced a month ago, apparently drawn up on the governor's behalf, but unsigned by anyone. Nor was it filed in any court.

The document cited "complete incompatiblity of temperament" and an "irretrievable breakdown of the marriage" as Wallace's reasons for seeking to end the marriage.

Mrs. Wallace left the executive mansion Tuesday, accompanied by DeMent and Dean. In a brief statement issued as a moving van stood ready to take her belongings from the mansion, she said:

"I have struggled a long time to preserve my marriage. I have left the mansion, for I can no longer endure the vulgarity, threats and abuse. I have instructed my lawyers to do what is necessary to protect me. I have nothing further to say at this time."

"NO, WE DON'T HAVE A LICENSE, BUT WE'RE ONLY CATCHING THE ONES THAT GOT AWAY LAST YEAR."

THE FAMILY CIRCUS. By Bil Keane

"Mommy, if you swat any flies will you save them for my spider?"

Today in U.S. History

By The Associated Press

Today is Thursday, September 8th, the 251st day of 1977. There are 114 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1935, Senator Huey Long of Louisiana was shot at Baton Rouge. He died two days later.

On this date:

In 1565, a Spanish expedition landed at what is now St. Augustine, Florida and founded the first permanent European settlement in North America.

In 1664, Peter Stuyvesant surrendered New Amsterdam to the British.

In 1760, Wisconsin came under British control after being French territory.

In 1855, the Crimean War ended.

In 1883, construction of the Northern Pacific railroad was completed with the driving of the last spike near Garrison, Mont.

In 1934, 134 people lost their lives in a fire aboard the liner Morro Castle off the New Jersey coast.

Ten years ago: Teacher disputes across the country kept more than 600,000 pupils out of school.

Five years ago: Scores of Israeli planes attacked Palestinian guerrilla bases in Syria and Lebanon — in reprisal for the massacre of Israeli athletes at the Munich Olympic games.

One year ago: The Civil Service Commission ordered the deletion of all political loyalty questions from standard job applications in compliance with a court ruling.

Today's birthdays: Comedian Sid Caesar is 55 years old. Songwriter Howard Dietz is 81.

Thought for today: The history of liberty is the history of limitations on the power of government — President Woodrow Wilson.

Ten years ago: Teacher disputes across the country kept more than 600,000 pupils out of school.

Five years ago: Scores of Israeli planes attacked Palestinian guerrilla bases in Syria and Lebanon — in reprisal for the massacre of Israeli athletes at the Munich Olympic games.

One year ago: The Civil Service Commission ordered the deletion of all political loyalty questions from standard job applications in compliance with a court ruling.

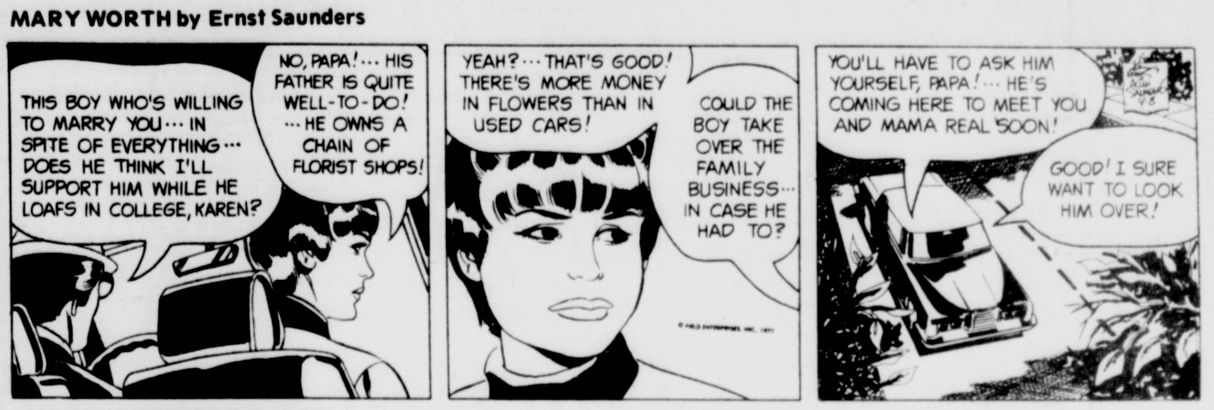

Today's birthdays: Comedian Sid Caesar is 55 years old. Songwriter Howard Dietz is 81.

Thought for today: The history of liberty is the history of limitations on the power of government — President Woodrow Wilson.

Lots of Living Space

HOME DESIGN
By Larry Farnsworth

This design goes all out to provide not only better than average amount of living comfort, but living pleasure as well. It accomplishes this largely because of an extra large country kitchen where so many of the miscellaneous activities which make living more interesting for everyone can be carried out in comfort, convenience and ease.

This room is a genuine throw back to the "good old days" of shared pleasures and pursuits, yet it is entirely up to date. Note the semi U-shaped work area; the counter for dining and the sliding glass door leading to a big patio designed to add extra outdoor living pleasure too.

Next to the country kitchen is a good sized living room offers its own drawing card—a raised hearth fireplace. Note the open foyer effect created for this room, and consider the unique decorating opportunities it allows, then glance back toward the front door where a large central entry also affords extra decorating scope.

Note too the laundry and storage space located at the front of the back to back bathrooms for plumbing economy and central to the laundry work load.

The fourth bedroom is central for alternate use as a den or even dining room. The master bedroom is set to the rear and nicely protected by closets from noise in the other bedrooms. Note the full length closets separating each room.

—HIGH-FLYING HOUSEKEEPING—

High-flying housekeeping took place recently when a helicopter lifted a 30 x 30 foot collar and placed it around the peak of the Jefferson Davis Monument in Fairview. Workmen will anchor their scaffolds to the collar so they can clean and repair the 53-year-old obelisk.

The first lift of the collar was aborted because the aircraft couldn't handle the 3,800 pound cargo due to dry atmospheric conditions. But a second attempt was successful.

The monument in Western Kentucky is a tribute to the only confederate president, a native of Fairview. It towers 351 feet above a serene Kentucky countryside and is the fourth highest monument in the United States.

Alf Landon to turn 90 Friday

TOPEKA, Kan. (AP) — Alf Landon warmly greeted the young man, who had just stepped from his dented old car after pulling up the long driveway to Landon's big white house.

"Where are you from?" Landon asked.

"I'm from Virginia. I'm a history nut, and a good Republican," the visitor said.

"Well, I'm glad to see you. It was mighty nice of you to drop by."

The young man asked to pose with Landon for pictures, thanked him profusely and departed.

The scene, repeated several times a year with variations, perhaps best tells the story of Alfred Mossman Landon today.

"He'll stop anything and talk to a school youngster who wants to do a story on him," said Theo Cobb Landon, his wife for 47 years.

"I guess that's why he's lived to be 90. I think it's because he keeps busy and he's so interested in people."

Alf Landon is 90 on Friday, still active in business, still eager to discuss politics, the economy or sports, and still riding Red, his aging horse and companion, several miles up the Kansas River each day that weather and business permit.

He's still the confidante of presidents, too. He's proud of the fact he's received personal notes from every President since Franklin D. Roosevelt.

"There's been no slowdown for the last 10 years, that's for sure," said Mrs. Landon, who recently abandoned her years-long fight to get him to quit smoking cigarettes.

It became Landon's trademark, even before he ran for president in 1936 against Roosevelt, to bum cigarettes from those he met.

Mrs. Landon tolerated his mooching cigarettes, but she didn't want him smoking them.

Landon went to the doctor this summer at Mrs. Landon's insistence, preparatory to a vacation trip to Colorado.

"He came out of the doctor's office and said, 'The doctor said I'm fine, and I can do anything I want to do.' fine, and I can do anything I want to do,'" Mrs. Landon related.

"I said, 'Well, what else could he say? You'd do what you want to do anyway. So, I let up on the cigarettes. Why fuss with him when it doesn't do any good?

"He said the other day, 'You know, I think I'll live to be 100.' I said, 'Well, I never doubted that you probably would. But you're going to have to find somebody else to give you birthday parties.'"

Mrs. Landon is putting on a private party for about 20 family members Friday evening, after she and the one-time Kansas governor travel to Manhattan for an address by U.S. Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland in the lecture series named for Landon at Kansas State University.

Kansas State officials are planning some extra special touches on the occasion of Landon's 90th birthday. And, Landon Junior High school here held a party for him.

Landon admits his goal was to reach 90. He professes no similar ambition to reach 100, however.

"Let's make it year by year now," he said.

But in the next breath, he added, "There are such exciting prospects ahead, in all aspects of life."

With his keen interest in everything from the state of the world to how the Kansas Jayhawks will do in the upcoming football season, few can doubt Landon's enthusiasm for life may well sustain him to the century mark.

Landon, who reached normal retirement age a quarter of a century ago, still is active in the oil business and is in the final stages of launching a new FM radio station at Fort Collins, Colo. It is his fifth station, with others located in Topeka, Dodge City and Liberal, Kan., and an AM station in Fort Collins.

"He's always pushing," Mrs. Landon said. "He stewed all evening whether the (broadcast) test on the new station would work. He's alwaysworrying about solving everyone's problems."

Landon has always had a keen business eye, especially in oil exploration. Right now, he's closely watching efforts to recover natural gas from shale in central Kansas, a prospect heretofore considered unfeasible.

"They must know something we don't know," Landon said of a current effort to pipe gas out of the area..

Landon never has been short on political opinions, and he offered these during a wide-ranging interview:

-Foreign policy: He supports President Carter on the proposed Panama Canal treaty and in pressuring Russia to observe human rights. "We're not giving the Panama Canal away; we're sharing it with Panama," he said. "The canal has limited value today, in peace or war, compared to when it first was built. I may not agree with all the details, but so what? It's the goal that counts."

-Imperialism: "Russia is making the same mistake as many nations before her, trying to maintain control over her satellites. They create an economic drain that can't be sustained forever."

-Energy: He supports President Carter's conservation policy "to eliminate waste, because it's in the interest of the people of the world."

-State of his Republican Party: Recent GOP triumphs in elections to fill congressional vacancies, and criticism of some of Carter's policies by Democrats indicates things are not as bleak as some Republicans think. And, he cautions, "When you get down to one-party government, you have a seedbed for a dictatorship."

-1980 Politics: It's too early to speculate whether former President Gerald Ford or Ronald Reagan might again be contenders for the GOP nomination.

Landon never sought the Republican nomination in 1936, nor has he ever looked back with bitterness upon his landslide loss to Roosevelt.

"I never went after the nomination as some have in history," he said. "It just built from the grassroots, mainly from some newspaper leaders who had observed what I did as governor of Kansas (1933-37)."

Only Oscar Stauffer, chairman of Stauffer Communications Inc. who will be 91 in november, survives of those who first promoted Landon for the presidency more than 40 years ago.

Landon admits he knew well in advance of the 1936 election that Roosevelt could not be beaten, because the time wasn't right. Landon carried only two states, Maine and Vermont.

He feels the United States still is paying the price of Roosevelt's managed economy policy, which is seemingly never-ending inflation. Yet, he's never harbored any bitterness about the outcome iin 1936.

Indeed, Landon has cherished his position of influence in public affairs, and the "elder statesman" status accorded him by the Republican Party, which went out of its way to recognize him at its 1972 Miami Beach and 1976 Kansas City conventions.

Presley family wants bodies moved to home

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Elvis Presley's family wants to move the bodies of the singer and his mother to a garden at Graceland Mansion.

D. Beecher Smith II, an attorney for the family, submitted a request Wednesday to the Board of Adjustment for an exception or variation to the residential zoning of the singer's 13-acre estate.

A variation would be required before the bodies could be moved from the mausoleum at Forest Hill Cemetery to the Meditation Garden on the mansion grounds. The cemetery is about three miles north of Graceland.

Smith said in a letter the board should grant an exception because it is impossible to provide adequate security for the bodies at Forest Hill. Smith said the cost to the family of providing security at the cemetery is about $200 a day.

The 42-year-old singer, who died Aug. 16 after an apparent heart attack, was entombed two days after his death. The body of his mother, Gladys Love Presley, was moved from a grave in the cemetery to the mausoleum after her son's body was placed there. Mrs. Presley died Aug. 14, 1958.

The application sought permission for as many as six burial sites at the Meditation Garden, which visitors said is on the south side of the mansion grounds.

The petition said the mansion is surrounded by a high stone wall and guarded 24 hours a day. The family's request is expected to be heard at the board's next meeting Sept. 28.

Eleven days after Presley's coffin was sealed in its crypt, three men were arrested near the cemetery and charged with trespassing. Police officials said they had received a tip the body would be stolen and held for ransom.

Police Director E. Winslow Chapman later called the scheme a hoax, but a man identified as a police informant maintains the body was to be held for $10 million ransom.

the papers, Lee allegedly grabbed a shotgun from the southwest corner of the kitchen and aimed it at Whittenburg. Carpenter, who was nearby, grabbed the barrel of the gun and as he pushed the barrel toward the ceiling, Lee pulled the trigger, discharging the blast into the ceiling.

The officers wrestled Lee to the floor and retrieved the gun.

Sebourn transported Lee to the sheriff's office in New Madrid where he has been charged with felonious assault.

Whittenburg and Carpenter took custody of Mrs. Lee, who was taken to Farmington.

agreement next week.

"After the agreement is signed, each of us intends to submit our decisions to our respectived legislative bodies for the appropriate authorizations and assurances," the President and the prime minister said. "We are both hopeful the project will be approved."

Democratic Whip John Brademas of Indiana said Carter and his advisers told him and other House leaders during a meeting in the Roosevelt Room at the White House that the trans+Canada "route would deliver gas more cheaply and cleanly and equitably than the alternate route" through Alaska.

White House officials said details of the agreement were on their way to Congress as required by law. Congress has 60 days either to let Carter's decision stand or reject it. The Senate Energy Committe has scheduled a hearing on the pipeline route for Sept. 26.

Brademas said the route through Canada would be acceptable to the House.

Trudeau attended the signing of Carter's new Panama Canal on Wednesday and the White House state dinne Wednesday night to celebrate the signing.

Carter had hoped to inform Congress of his choice of two competing pipeline proposals — the one crossing Canada and an "all+American" route through Alaska and then south using liquified-gas tankers — by Wednesday, the day Congress returned from its summer recess.

Appropriations Committee, said he hoped the "primary discussion" between the conference committee members could take place next Tuesday, "with perhaps final approval by the conferees later that week."

The senator also said most of the members of the conference committee considering the huge building bill would be in Jefferson City next Tuesday for a meeting of the Joint Legislative Committee on Fiscal Affairs. Informal talks could start then, with the members of the negotiating committeee meeting again Wednesday "to finalize the bill," Manford explained. "It is my hope that a final approval by the Senate and the House can be reached the week of Sept. 19," Manford said.

Gov. Joseph Teasdale had called the legislature back into special session Aug. 10, after he and the legisltive leadership had worked out a compromise on the controversial prison issue.

Although the House and Senate quickly accepted the $37 million prison settlement, they then got bogged down on other sections of the bill.

The prison compromise calls for spending $25 million for a medium security prison in the St. Louis area or in Washington County and another $11 million for additional maximum security units at the main penitentiary in Jefferson City.

During the regular session the House stood firm for a medium security prison in an urban area , while the Senate favored a maximum security prison in mid+Missouri.

The resulting deadlock delayed final approval of the multi-million capital improvements bill and eventually brought this summer's special session.

campaign for the treaty.

He is expected to stress the international support the treaty enjoys, a point amply demonstrated Wednesday night.

The 27 foreign leaders were at the Organization of American States headquarters to watch Carter and Panamanian head of government Omar Torrijos mark the formal end of 13 years of negotiation with the signing.

The officials said Carter will also seek support by campaigning against the present treaty, which dates from the turn of the century.

He told the OAS gathering, "That treaty, drafted in a world so different from ours, has become an obstacle to better relations with Latin America."

At a White House dinner for the visiting hemispheric dignitaries after the OAS ceremony, Carter noted that no Panamanian had read the 1903 treaty before it was signed.

The third point Carter will use in the coming weeks focuses on the provision in the treaty guaranteeing the United States the right to ensure canal neutrality even after Panama assumes control of the waterway at the end of this century.

Carter said the treaty marks "the commitment of the United States to the belief that fairness, not force, should lie at the heart of dealings with the nations of the world."

Torrijos said that while the old treaty was a "technical conquest," it also was a "colonial conquest."

"To be strong carries with it an obligation to be just," he said.

There were some dissenting voices to the signing. In Panama, demonstrators advocating an immediate takeover of the canal hurled stones and shouted slogans at the Foreign Ministry.

"Let's make it year by year now," he said.

But in the next breath, he added, "There are such exciting prospects ahead, in all aspects of life."

With his keen interest in everything from the state of the world to how the Kansas Jayhawks will do in the upcoming football season, few can doubt Landon's enthusiasm for life may well sustain him to the century mark.

Landon, who reached normal retirement age a quarter of a century ago, still is active in the oil business and is in the final stages of launching a new FM radio station at Fort Collins, Colo. It is his fifth station, with others located in Topeka, Dodge City and Liberal, Kan., and an AM station in Fort Collins.

"He's always pushing," Mrs. Landon said. "He stewed all evening whether the (broadcast) test on the new station would work. He's alwaysworrying about solving everyone's problems."

Landon has always had a keen business eye, especially in oil exploration. Right now, he's closely watching efforts to recover natural gas from shale in central Kansas, a prospect heretofore considered unfeasible.

"They must know something we don't know," Landon said of a current effort to pipe gas out of the area..

Landon never has been short on political opinions, and he offered these during a wide-ranging interview:

-Foreign policy: He supports President Carter on the proposed Panama Canal treaty and in pressuring Russia to observe human rights. "We're not giving the Panama Canal away; we're sharing it with Panama," he said. "The canal has limited value today, in peace or war, compared to when it first was built. I may not agree with all the details, but so what? It's the goal that counts."

-Imperialism: "Russia is making the same mistake as many nations before her, trying to maintain control over her satellites. They create an economic drain that can't be sustained forever."

-Energy: He supports President Carter's conservation policy "to eliminate waste, because it's in the interest of the people of the world."

-State of his Republican Party: Recent GOP triumphs in elections to fill congressional vacancies, and criticism of some of Carter's policies by Democrats indicates things are not as bleak as some Republicans think. And, he cautions, "When you get down to one-party government, you have a seedbed for a dictatorship."

-1980 Politics: It's too early to speculate whether former President Gerald Ford or Ronald Reagan might again be contenders for the GOP nomination.

Landon never sought the Republican nomination in 1936, nor has he ever looked back with bitterness upon his landslide loss to Roosevelt.

"I never went after the nomination as some have in history," he said. "It just built from the grassroots, mainly from some newspaper leaders who had observed what I did as governor of Kansas (1933-37)."

Only Oscar Stauffer, chairman of Stauffer Communications Inc. who will be 91 in november, survives of those who first promoted Landon for the presidency more than 40 years ago.

Landon admits he knew well in advance of the 1936 election that Roosevelt could not be beaten, because the time wasn't right. Landon carried only two states, Maine and Vermont.

He feels the United States still is paying the price of Roosevelt's managed economy policy, which is seemingly never-ending inflation. Yet, he's never harbored any bitterness about the outcome iin 1936.

Indeed, Landon has cherished his position of influence in public affairs, and the "elder statesman" status accorded him by the Republican Party, which went out of its way to recognize him at its 1972 Miami Beach and 1976 Kansas City conventions.

Presley family wants bodies moved to home

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Elvis Presley's family wants to move the bodies of the singer and his mother to a garden at Graceland Mansion.

D. Beecher Smith II, an attorney for the family, submitted a request Wednesday to the Board of Adjustment for an exception or variation to the residential zoning of the singer's 13-acre estate.

A variation would be required before the bodies could be moved from the mausoleum at Forest Hill Cemetery to the Meditation Garden on the mansion grounds. The cemetery is about three miles north of Graceland.

Smith said in a letter the board should grant an exception because it is impossible to provide adequate security for the bodies at Forest Hill. Smith said the cost to the family of providing security at the cemetery is about $200 a day.

The 42-year-old singer, who died Aug. 16 after an apparent heart attack, was entombed two days after his death. The body of his mother, Gladys Love Presley, was moved from a grave in the cemetery to the mausoleum after her son's body was placed there. Mrs. Presley died Aug. 14, 1958.

The application sought permission for as many as six burial sites at the Meditation Garden, which visitors said is on the south side of the mansion grounds.

The petition said the mansion is surrounded by a high stone wall and guarded 24 hours a day. The family's request is expected to be heard at the board's next meeting Sept. 28.

Eleven days after Presley's coffin was sealed in its crypt, three men were arrested near the cemetery and charged with trespassing. Police officials said they had received a tip the body would be stolen and held for ransom.

Police Director E. Winslow Chapman later called the scheme a hoax, but a man identified as a police informant maintains the body was to be held for $10 million ransom.

the papers, Lee allegedly grabbed a shotgun from the southwest corner of the kitchen and aimed it at Whittenburg. Carpenter, who was nearby, grabbed the barrel of the gun and as he pushed the barrel toward the ceiling, Lee pulled the trigger, discharging the blast into the ceiling.

The officers wrestled Lee to the floor and retrieved the gun.

Sebourn transported Lee to the sheriff's office in New Madrid where he has been charged with felonious assault.

Whittenburg and Carpenter took custody of Mrs. Lee, who was taken to Farmington.

agreement next week.

"After the agreement is signed, each of us intends to submit our decisions to our respectived legislative bodies for the appropriate authorizations and assurances," the President and the prime minister said. "We are both hopeful the project will be approved."

Democratic Whip John Brademas of Indiana said Carter and his advisers told him and other House leaders during a meeting in the Roosevelt Room at the White House that the trans+Canada "route would deliver gas more cheaply and cleanly and equitably than the alternate route" through Alaska.

White House officials said details of the agreement were on their way to Congress as required by law. Congress has 60 days either to let Carter's decision stand or reject it. The Senate Energy Committe has scheduled a hearing on the pipeline route for Sept. 26.

Brademas said the route through Canada would be acceptable to the House.

Trudeau attended the signing of Carter's new Panama Canal on Wednesday and the White House state dinne Wednesday night to celebrate the signing.

Carter had hoped to inform Congress of his choice of two competing pipeline proposals — the one crossing Canada and an "all+American" route through Alaska and then south using liquified-gas tankers — by Wednesday, the day Congress returned from its summer recess.

Appropriations Committee, said he hoped the "primary discussion" between the conference committee members could take place next Tuesday, "with perhaps final approval by the conferees later that week."

The senator also said most of the members of the conference committee considering the huge building bill would be in Jefferson City next Tuesday for a meeting of the Joint Legislative Committee on Fiscal Affairs. Informal talks could start then, with the members of the negotiating committeee meeting again Wednesday "to finalize the bill," Manford explained. "It is my hope that a final approval by the Senate and the House can be reached the week of Sept. 19," Manford said.

Gov. Joseph Teasdale had called the legislature back into special session Aug. 10, after he and the legisltive leadership had worked out a compromise on the controversial prison issue.

Although the House and Senate quickly accepted the $37 million prison settlement, they then got bogged down on other sections of the bill.

The prison compromise calls for spending $25 million for a medium security prison in the St. Louis area or in Washington County and another $11 million for additional maximum security units at the main penitentiary in Jefferson City.

During the regular session the House stood firm for a medium security prison in an urban area , while the Senate favored a maximum security prison in mid+Missouri.

The resulting deadlock delayed final approval of the multi-million capital improvements bill and eventually brought this summer's special session.

campaign for the treaty.

He is expected to stress the international support the treaty enjoys, a point amply demonstrated Wednesday night.

The 27 foreign leaders were at the Organization of American States headquarters to watch Carter and Panamanian head of government Omar Torrijos mark the formal end of 13 years of negotiation with the signing.

The officials said Carter will also seek support by campaigning against the present treaty, which dates from the turn of the century.

He told the OAS gathering, "That treaty, drafted in a world so different from ours, has become an obstacle to better relations with Latin America."

At a White House dinner for the visiting hemispheric dignitaries after the OAS ceremony, Carter noted that no Panamanian had read the 1903 treaty before it was signed.

The third point Carter will use in the coming weeks focuses on the provision in the treaty guaranteeing the United States the right to ensure canal neutrality even after Panama assumes control of the waterway at the end of this century.

Carter said the treaty marks "the commitment of the United States to the belief that fairness, not force, should lie at the heart of dealings with the nations of the world."

Torrijos said that while the old treaty was a "technical conquest," it also was a "colonial conquest."

"To be strong carries with it an obligation to be just," he said.

There were some dissenting voices to the signing. In Panama, demonstrators advocating an immediate takeover of the canal hurled stones and shouted slogans at the Foreign Ministry.
